Jury 'hears' Nixon OK CIA involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jury in the Watergate cover-up trial, listening to a June 23, 1972, White House tape, today heard defendant H. R. Haldeman obtain the approval of former President Nixon for a plan to use the Central Intelligence Agency to choke off the original FBI investigation into Watergate.

Donning olive-green earphones, the jurors listened as Haldeman proposed that the deputy director of the CIA call the FBI and say:

"Stay the hell out of this ... We don't want you to go any further on it."

Huldeman suggests that he and defendant John D. Ehrlichman call in the two top officials of the CIA and direct them to warn off the FBI from investigating the financing of the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Shortly before the tape was played, Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy CIA director, testified that he was summoned to the White House within a few hours of the Haldeman-Nixon meeting and ordered to persuade then acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III that CIA resources were jeopardized.

The June 23 tape also involves defendant and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Nixon asks Haldeman, "Well, what the hell, did Mitchell know about this thing to any much of a degree?"

Haldeman: "I think so. I don't think he knew the details, but I think he knew."

Nixon kept the existence of the June 23 tape secret until Aug. 5, just a few days before he resigned the presidency.

On the transcript released then by Nixon, the President is heard to summarize how the CIA would be drawn into the cover-up.

That transcript quoted Nixon as saying, "They (the CIA) should call the FBI in and (unintelligible) don't go any further into this case, period."

That quote was left out of the tape played for the jury. Watergate prosecutors have expressed fear that the pardon granted Nixon from prosecution in the cover-up case and other investigations might influence the jury's willingness to convict the five defendants.

Earlier, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had agreed to defense requests that a crucial word on the tape be described as unintelligible on the transcript seen by the jury.

The word spoken by Haldeman is "Gemstone," the code name for the plan to wiretap the Democrats.

To at least one listener, the word "Gemstone" could easily be heard and recognized.

Sirica earlier denied a request for a separate trial and for a mistrial from two of the defendants in the trial.

Before the tape was played, Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testified that defendant H. R. Haldeman ordered him in June 1972, to head off part of the FBI investigation into Watergate.

Walters said he was summoned to the White House at noon on June 23, 1972, which is within a half-hour of the time former President Nixon gave his approval to the use of the CIA to short-circuit the initial FBI probe of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Nixon's approval of the plan appears on a White House tape which Watergate prosecutors heard by jury today.

To support the evidence on the tape, the prosecutors called Walters, who quoted Haldeman as saying "the bugging of the Watergate is creating a lot of noise."

Walters said Haldeman was worried about the FBI's investigation and said, "the leads might lead to some important people."

Also attending that meeting, said Walters, were former CIA director Richard Helms and cover-up defendant John D. Ehrlichman. Except to offer the use of a telephone to call Gray, Walters said Ehrlichman took no part in the conversation.

Walters said he was directed to tell the FBI that CIA resources in Mexico would be jeopardized by continued FBI investigation of the money used to finance the break-in.

Walters testified he was ordered to go to Gray despite emphatic denials by Helms that there was any CIA connectiton to the burglary or wiretapping.

Walters said he did meet with Gray and asked him to "taper off" the money investigation, even though he and Helms could find no danger to any CIA clandestine operations in Mexico.

Later, the Marine general testified, he reversed himself and told Gray to have his agents investigate without any fear of affecting any CIA operations.

Walters' testimony closely paralleled what he told the Senate Watergate Committee in August, 1973.

Sirica's action in denying the defense motions came before the Watergate prosecutors began playing the series of 26 White House tapes they say is the most important part of their case.

Among them is the last tape made public by Richard M. Nixon before he resigned the presidency.

Burglar enters home; leaves 2 cans of beer

Someone forced open the door to the Gale Brazel apartment 407 Moore Ave., Thursday or Friday and deposited two cans of beer in her refrigerator.

Mrs. Brazel told police she could find nothing missing from the apartment.

However, other people were no so lucky, according to police reports released today.

Burglars took 18 one-pound packages of bacon from the Paul Yarber home, 333 Dixie St., between 7:45 p.m. Friday and 2 a.m. Saturday. Police said a window on the northwest side of the house was forced open and the bacon was taken from a freezer.

The amount of the loss was placed at $22.80.

A billfold containing $20 was taken from a purse belonging to Kathy Lewis, 234 N. Ranney St., between 9 and 10:50 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Lewis told police she and her husband were sitting in the Malco Twin Cinema watching a movie when the billfold was taken. She said she had placed her purse under the seat and, when she got up to leave, she found it open and the billfold gone.

Gary Holt, 232 W. Gladys, told police someone took two speakers from his wife's car sometime Sunday while it was parked in front of the house.

The Holts were away from home at the time of the theft. The loss was placed at $20.

Burglars took an electric calculator from Gilles Feed & Seed Co., 420 W. North St., between 5 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday.

Police said the calculator was found abandoned near a house on Davis Boulevard before it was reported stolen.

Coal stockpile sufficient

The nationwide coal strike, scheduled to begin tonight, should have little effect on Sikeston Light and Water Co. customers if the strike is as short as predicted, perhaps no more than two weeks. Stockpiles of coal at the city steam plant, which generated electricity are now sufficient to last three and one-half to four months at current load levels.

Pensions get larger here

How much are Scott County residents now receiving from Washington each month in the form of social security checks?

How do these checks compare in size with those going to other sections of the country?

The latest official figures, released by the Social Security Administration, show that the pension payments on the local area are comparatively large.

They have been rising considerably during the last few years, due to the increases that have gone into effect.

Payments to Scott County beneficiaries, as of the beginning of this year, were at the annual rate of $1,442 per recipient, as against $1,098 in 1971.

The fact that the checks going to local residents are running bigger, on average, than those to many other parts of the country indicates that, over the years, their incomes were better.

More and more retired or disabled people and their dependents qualify each year to receive social security payments, due to revisions of the law that have reduced the age of retirement and brought in classes of workers that were ineligible formerly.

The current report shows that the number of persons in Scott County who were receiving pension payments in the past year was 6,005. In 1971 there were 5,439.

The increase in the number enrolled in social security has been accompanied by frequent hikes in the amounts paid out in benefits, as well as in the payroll taxes that go to pay for them.

The figures show that more than $8,664,000 is now entering the county annually via the social security route. In 1971, by way of contrast, it was $5,976,000.

The increase, 44.9 per cent, compares with a rise of 41.6 per cent in the United States and with 38.4 per cent in the State of Missouri.

With the changes that have been made, social security has expanded to huge proportions. It involves the collection and payout of over $51 billion annually, which is nearly a fourth of all other federal receipts.

Mines shutdown as strike nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal strike will begin just after midnight but most mines already were shut for the holiday. Union and industry negotiators are optimistic about reaching a new contract.

Another bargaining session was scheduled today. While both sides say they are making progress, a settlement appears unlikely before midweek at the earliest.

"I certainly feel we're not too many days away from a settlement," said Guy Farmer, the chief industry negotiator. "We're getting closer ... but I can't say when," said United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller.

Each day of delay will further prolong the strike, now expected to last at least two weeks. That's the estimated time required for miners to vote on any tentative pact.

The government says a walkout of any longer duration will begin to force production cutbacks in other industries and result in layoffs of thousands of workers.

A strike is unavoidable because of the UMW's "no contract, no work" tradition, and because ratification of any settlement would require about 10 days. Thus, the length of the walkout depends on the negotiators' ability to hammer out a new agreement that will win rank-and-file approval. The current contract expires at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

After furious last minute stockpiling Saturday, most coal mines were idle Sunday and are expected to remain so until the union's 120,000 members approve a new contract. Were the mines to work today — Veteran's Day — the companies would have to pay triple wages under holiday provisions of the current pact.

The negotiators met until 11 p.m. Sunday before recessing for the night, the latest they have worked in nearly a week.

As he emerged from the talks, Farmer said he thought it would be midweek before a settlement was worked out. Earlier, he had been hopeful of an agreement over this past weekend.

Several industries — notably railroads and steel companies — are expected to feel the initial effect of the strike.

The Norfolk & Western Railway, the nation's second largest coal hauler, has already announced plans for layoffs once present coal stockpiles at mines have been shipped. And, the Penn Central, the largest rail carrier, says it stands to lose $5 million a week during the strike.

Nine hurt in accidents

An Ellsinore couple was seriously injured and seven persons received minor injuries in six area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol announced today.

Louie Elmer MaGee, 66, and his wife Opal, 65, of Ellsinore were seriously injured in a one-car accident at 12:35 p.m. Sunday on Highway 67 four miles south of Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when MaGee's southbound car ran off the right side of the road and struck the Cane Creek bridge.

Both victims were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Buddy Leon Walker, 33, of Zalma was injured at 10 p.m. Friday on Route V six miles west of Advance when his pickup truck ran off the road, struck an embankment and overturned.

Walker received minor injuries and was taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital for treatment.

Sidney Keith Vancil, 52, of Holcomb was injured at 1:15 p.m. Saturday one mile west of Holcomb on Route B when he drove his northbound farm tractor into the path of a car driven by James Leon Burton, 29, of Holcomb.

Vancil was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

A Perryville boy and girl was injured in an accident at 12:15 a.m. Saturday on a gravel road two miles south of the McBride community in Perry County.

The accident occurred when a westbound truck driven by Bradley Riney, 16, of Perryville skidded and overturned.

Riney and a passenger, Norma Riney, 17, of Perryville, received minor injuries and was taken to Perry County Hospital for treatment.

Joyce Armour, 32, and her daughter, Joanne Gaskins, 13, of Wyatt received minor injuries at 11:30 a.m. Sunday on Highway 77 in Wyatt.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Armour's car ran off the road and struck a culvert.

Both Mrs. Armour and her daughter were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A Senath man was injured in an accident at 12:15 p.m. Sunday on Highway 25 one mile east of Arkansas state line near Cardwell in Dunklin County.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Larry Eddie Grooms, 32, ran off the road, jumped a drainage ditch and came to rest submerged in water.

Grooms received minor injuries and was taken to Methodist Community Hospital in Paragould, Ark., for treatment.

First value day set for Wednesday

The first Sikeston Value Day—a day on which merchants in the city will offer sales and specials is set for Wednesday.

The promotion is sponsored by the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce and the city's retail merchants.

Advertisements in a special section of Tuesday's edition of the Daily Standard and Wednesday's Shopper Topper will announce retail specials for Wednesday.

The majority of merchants in Sikeston are taking part in the Sikeston Value Day promotion, which will be presented the second Wednesday of each month.

Catron woman kills herself

CATRON — Mrs. Lillina Swiney, wife of the Rev. James Swiney, a Baptist minister, died about 7:30 a.m. today at the family home of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton.

Clayton said Mrs. Swiney, reportedly in her 40s, had been in ill health and depressed and had written a note stating she intended to take her life. He said death was caused by a .38-caliber bullet wound in the head.

The Rev. Mr . Swiney told officers he was in the bathroom shaving when he heard a shot fired by Mrs. Swiney who was in the bedroom.

The body is at Ponder Funeral Home in Lilbourn, where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Standard has its own Ann Landers in Risco

RISCO— Mrs. Patsy Ann Landers, a resident of the Risco community for the past 30 years, has been reporting for the Daily Standard since March of 1971.

She attended school at Risco, graduating as salutatorian of the class of 1955. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindell Stobaugh, also live in Risco.

Mrs. Landers is the wife of Don Landers and their joint specialty is rearing boys. Their four sons, Steve, 17, Ted, 15, Brent, 12, and Mike, six, all attend Risco RII Schools.

Mrs. Landers, sometimes privately referred to as "Ann," occasionally emulates her famous syndicated counterpart by offering free personal advice guaranteed to be worth its cost. She is a member of the Risco Rural Independent Club and enjoys original handcrafts and sewing, which she did profesionally for 15 years.

Patsy Ann Landers

She is active in community4-H work and believes that 4-H work aids the youth of today in becoming responsible citizens of tomorrow. As a clothing project leader, Mrs. Landers teaches sewing to several "substitute daughters."

The Landers family attends the Risco General Baptist Church where Mrs. Landers has taught in the children's department for more than 15 years.

To report news of the Risco area, phone Mrs. Landers at 396-5878 or contact her at home on Highway 62, two and one-half miles East of Risco.

Consumer group puts top goal label on no-fault

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Implementation of no-fault automobile insurance will be the top goal in 1975 of the state Department of Consumer Affairs, according to consumer affairs chief Alfred Sikes.

"A finding of fault should not be the concern in the majority of cases," Sikes said in a weekend speech. "To the degree it is necessary that fault be punished, our traffic laws and the insurance company's underwriting policies will suffice. The important thing is to get the claim settled in the fastest, most equitable way possible."

He said that if the state legislature, which has failed to pass bills for no-fault car insurance in the last three years, does not approve such a measure, federal standards probably would be imposed. Sikes claimed it would be better for a law to be passed that takes into consideration the specific driving habits of Missourians.

He noted that 21 states already have some form of no-fault insurance program and quoted a congressional report that the 10 Largest auto insurers were invoived in nearly 360,000 personal injury lawsuits in 1970, some of them pending for more than eight years.

"The primary goal of this insurance reform is to reduce the payment of benefits time lag, assure fair payment of damages and reduce premiums," Sikes said.

Energy self-sufficiency is technologically possible. "But," warns Commissioner William O. Doub of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, "dealing with public fear about the safety of using nuclear power to produce electricity and public misunderstanding about the capabilities of alternate sources to meet our growing energy needs is quite nother matter. This particularly true when critics ... make almost hysterical appeals to these human emotions in their efforts to stop the use of nuclear power.

Commissioner Doub points out, as have many other knowledgeable people, the safety record of nuclear plants and emphasized that, "The most important job of the nuclear industry is, and has to be, safety." And so far as safety is concerned, the record of the nuclear industry is unsurpassed. With regard to the growing role nuclear energy will play in the overall energy picture, the Commissioner observed, "The nuclear power industry is already a major economic force with approximately $74 billion invested in or committed to nuclear power plants. Ine one year the operation of a single 100)megwatt nuclear power plant accounts for a saving of twelve million barrels of oil. As an industry, nuclear power has matured methodically over the past 20 years and with greater attention to public health and safety than any other industry ... Nuclear is an abundant, controllable energy source."

When energy self-sufficiency is discussed as a goal for the United States, the heart of the issue is not whether it can be accomplished, but whether the public will accept the blessings of a new technology and open the way to a higher state of civilization.

GOLF COURSES
TEE OFF

During the past decade, 3,900 new golf courses, including additions to existing facilities, have opened for play throughout the United States.

The number has ranged from over 500 in 19675 to 266 in 1972 — a yearly average of 390. Last year, 322 new courses were opened, led by Ohio, with 34; Michigan, 25; California, 23; Florida, 21; Texas, 17; Colorado, 16; Tennessee, 14; Iowa, 13, and North Carolina, 11.

As the nation's official clearinghouse on gold information, the National Gold Foundation has records on gold course growth since 1931. Each year, all new courses are added to NFG's computerized national inventory.

In 1931, there were 5,691 golf courses of all types in plan. In 1961, the total was 6,623, or a net increase of only about 16 per cent. But between 1961 and 1973, the inventory jumped to 10,870, an increase of 64 per cent in 12 years.

Between 1931 and 1973, 5,180 daily fee and municipal courses were opened, as opposed to only 377 new private courses. This tremendous growth in public courses, says the Urban Land Institute, clearly brings into focus the trend in golf course development in recent years: Golf no longer belongs to the few; it is everyman's game.

Another startling fact, says the Institute, is the great increase in golf courses associated with land development projects. In 1964, only 16.3 per cent of all golf courses built were part of land sales, new p lanned towns or resort and convention facilities. By 1973, the figure had soared to over 40 per cent.

UNARRESTABLE PETE

Big Pete was quite a guy. Everyone in town knew his big Ventrillix 16. In fact, it became his alter ego. He was a friendly individual, gave to all the drives, and each candidate for office could always count on a liberal donation from him. No one seemed to know where he got his money. But, then, as long as he passed it around as he did, no one cared to ask, either.

Now, parking was quite a problem for most people in Acirema, but not for Pete. If Big Pete wanted to go someplace and there was no place to park, he just parked anyway. Fireplugs, mailboxes, safety zones, made no difference. And if none of these was handy, the middle of the street had to do.

The City Fathers were quite strict on the parking problem. In fact, this and going faster than legal were used as a means of getting more cash any time City Hall needed a few extra goldoras. This, incidentally, was most frequent. Did Big Pete ever get a parking ticket; Don't be silly! What cop would give that big pink Ventrillix a ticket? You couldn't make it stick in the first place, and, besides, who wants to be shanghied to the sticks?

Now for the other drivers, there were spaces along the roadside with what were known as centino snatchers. You put in your centinos if and when you could find a vacant space. This permitted you to park on the streets your tax money had already paid for. The money was supposed to pay for building p arking spaces at sometime in the future, but the future never arrived. The City Fathers always seemed to find other uses for these centinos. In fact, it was rumored that when the till was rather empty, they sent out the flippers who let down the markers, and then your auto was ticketed. This meant a fine in goldoras rather then centinos.

When Big Pete basked in the status of being a lily, the meter flippers made things rather hard on the minor posies.

Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today reminded motorists that speed and darkness can be a deadly combination.

"Speed and darkness can certainly be a deadly combination," Smith stated. "By speed, I don't necessarily mean a high rate of speed. I mean a speed too fast for conditions. Dusk or darkness are conditions that call for traveling at a much lower speed than would be traveled on the same road in daylight."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that obviously a vehicle going at a low speed can stop in a shorter distance than one going father. This is a vital point in the night driving picture. In dusk or darkness a driver can't see as far ahead as he can in daylight. In fact, on a very dark road he can see only as far as the range of his headlights. He should, therefore, travel at a speed that will enable him to stop within the distance illuminated by his headlights.

"Alertness, of course, is very important at night," the Colonel continued. "Pedestrians and other motorists are difficult to see at night. An alert driver is more likely to see them in time to avoid an accident.

"Night driving calls for a 'tightening up' on the normal safe driving procedures a driver follows during the daylight hours," he concluded. "Drivers must adjust their speed and be extra alert for any traffic hazard that may be hidden in darkness."

COMPANY OUTLINES PLAN FOR MINORITIES

The Quaker Oats Company has announced plans to provide 476 additional jobs worth $4 million in annual wages for non-whites by 1976.

The new jobs, which will range from executive, managerial and scientific positions to assembly line jobs, will raise its minorities payroll from $17 million to $21 million annually.

Quaker employs some 18,000 persons at 34 major plants, of whom approximately 2,000 are blacks and other minorities.

The Company, widely diversified in food, chemical, toy production and a restaurant chain, carries about $14 million in insurance with black companies and will add another $7 million by 1976.

The new plan includes some $2 million in construction that will go to black or non-white firms, and $702,000 annually to go to minority-run advertising firms.

TOTAL
ENVIRONMENT

As someone pointed out recently, there is more to the environment than the air we breathe, the water we drink and the trees and forests. Our environment also includes the house in which we live, the office, farm or factory in which we work to give us the where-withal with which to live and the commerce upon which a healthy economy depends. All of these things go to make up the total environment, which, according to the dictionary, is the aggregate of the external conditions and influences affecting the life of an organism.

So far as the environment is concerned, man must be considered as a mere organism. He requires the necessities and the amenities of his life that are part of his environment just as surely as air, water and forests. Pollution control must conform to our total environmental requirements. In short, we need air, water, forests -- and factories, homes and businesses.

PLOWSHARES BOW TO THE TEST TUBE

A growing number of farmers are abandoning the plow. No, they're not leaving the farm but are substituting chemical tools for the instrument used by men of the land since before written history.

It's called "no tillage" farming.

In a typical example, after harvesting his crop of wheat in the spring, instead of churning up tons of soil with a plow a farmer simply used a herbicide to kill off the weeds. A few days later, after the weeds and wheat stubble turn brown and begin to form a mulch, a special planter is used to cut through the mulch, dig pockets in the earth, drop in soybean seeds and cover them. At the same time, a fertilizer and a more selective herbicide which acts on above-ground weeds only are applied.

According to the quarterly Bulletin of Standard Oil of California, tillage — plowing, discing and harrowing — is the most expensive element of crop production, consuming tremendous amounts of labor, fuel and equipment. Soil losses caused by tillage, which annually exposes 250 billion tons of U.S. soil to erosion, has long worried conservationists and soil scientists.

In the mid-1960s, the U.Soil Conservation Servic began working with state universities, farm co-operatives and chemical company representatives in a number of field tests of no-tillage farming. The results were impressive.

By skipping the tedious and expensive process of plowing, farmers could plant earlier in the season without waiting for dry weather thereby gaining extra days of growing time. The results were higher yields per acres, lower equipment costs and decreased fuel consumption.

By planting in a mulch created by dead crops and weeds, wind-caused erosion was reduced, soil structure was maintained and — an added benefit of interest to environmentalists — pesticide residues were retained in the soil instead of being carried by run-off water into rivers and streams.

No-tillage farming will never entirely replace the plow. It cannot be used where farmers rely on furrow or row irrigation as in portions of California, or on highly compactible soils or in extremely cold, wet soils which require tillage to dry them out.

Nevertheless, it is estimated that in the United States virtually every acre of cropland east of the Rockies and south of the Great Lakes is plantable by no-till methods. Today, in the Midwest and South, hundreds of thousands of acres are being double-cropped without any tillage at all, saving farmers time and money while increasing their profits — and America's all-important capacity to produce food.

FREEDOM TO READ

This seems to be an age of Freedom for everyone to do this "thing." Among the Freedoms most important to all businesses is the Freedom to read (or not to read). The decision of what to read takes place during a scanning process. An ad designer can stop this scanning with an unusually creative treatment.

The best way to stop this scanning, Dr. Stuart Tolley, Bureau of Advertising, says is to offer simple and clear-cut creative treatments which permit the inherent appeals to be perceived with the reader's first screening of the ad.

"The first thing to be said about newspaper reading is that it is not forced. It is something people do as, when and because they want to. The reader can read as little or as much as she wants." Dr. Tolley pointed out.

He concluded that the material which is difficult for the eye to make sense of in the first few screenings eithr is rejected or returned to for more study, but if any comes through to the consciousness as interesting, it has a higher priority of being examined in more detail.

HALF NEW HOUSING IS IN SIX STATES

Florida and California led the list of states in new housing units authorized by permits in 1973, the U.S. Bureau of the Census has reported.

More than a quarter of all new housing units were concentrated in these two states out of a total 1,795,000 units authorized for the entire nation last year.

DO WE SEE — YET NOT SEE

The old saying "we're too close to the woods to see the trees". still applies.

Traveling the county and state highways and by-roads in Monroe County, we see miles and miles of beautiful flowers, even though to most of us they are "weeds".

Those from a distance marvel at the beautiful trees, the lush frasses, the green fields, the miles of black-eyed Susans, the Queen Anne's Lace and other wild flowering plants.

Yes, having lived our younger years on the farm, they are a nuisance, a pest and an unwanted weed to the farmer, but the fact remains those flowering plants are beautiful, and should be appreciated if we could forget the extra work they cause us.

Later, our travelarteries will be lined with Spanish Needle, goldenrod and other wild flowering plants.

Few states can equal Missouri in profusion of colorful blossoming plants and trees.

HOW CHILE WAS
SUBVERTED, THEN SAVED

More than a year has now passed since the Marxist regime of Salvador Allende in Chile was overthrown. Despite the incessant propaganda campaign against the new Chilean government, still more evidence emerges showing just how Chile was subverted to bring Allende to power and the enormous damage his government did.

During the three years preceding Allende's election, the supposedly anti- Marxist Christian Democrat government had built up a bureaucracy that was consuming fully one quarter of Chile's gross national product. Partisan pettiness and strife had caused most Chileans to lose confidence in their government, so the way was opened to the communists.

Allende in power was an obedient tool of Soviet Russia, for instance granting Russia special favors in a fishing treaty that was kept secret and which violated the Chilean constitution. He brought in Castroite Cubans, Maoist Chinese and leftist U. S. representatives to help consolidate his power. As Pedro Ivanez, formerly a Chilean Senator, said: "A score of foreign universities became sources of boastful, pseudo-academic judgments and misinformation about Allende's experiments, which received wide publicity by much of the world's press."

When Allende was finally overthrown, overwhelming evidence was available to have convicted him of both personal corruption and high treason. Mr. Ivanez is convinced that this is why he committed suicide rather than be captured alive.

But Chile seems to have learned some very fundamental lessons from its near disaster. There is no longer any significant support in that country for compromising with Marxism, but rather a determination to build a much sounder government that will not yield to the leftist pull that grips so many governments today. Inside Labor

by Victor Riesel

Riesel for Monday A 'People's Congress': Labor Now Controls America's 'Parliament'

WASHINGTON-- Well, labor now has its "People's Congress," nee a "veto-proof Congress." And it was one of the most expensive political buys in history. In the words of one sophisticated international union chief: "Never did we spend so much for so many candidates, but whether this will pay off or not is another story. We could very well have a runaway Congress. Just look at all the McGovern types who rolled in on the tidal wave."

However, it was much more than money which labor spent. Rarely if ever in any land have there been such methodical planning, ingenuity, logistics, manpower, street, local, regional and "hinterland" committees, films, conferences, flying squads, millions of phone calls and millions of special letters poured into a nationwide campaign by any political force as did labor this year.

Thus labor, mostly the AFL-CIO COPE, Committee on Political Education, won everywhere, almost at will. So powerful was its high-geared campaign machinery, that it even threw the brakes on its anti-Republican juggernaut in fear of creating such absolute anti-GOP sentiment among its members that even its few Republican allies would be defeated. The brakes held.

In New York, labor re-elected Republican Sen. Jack Javits. He'd not have made it otherwise. In Pennsylvania, labor pushed through incumbent Sen. Richard Schweiker, "who in the last few years has been 'right' on every vote listed by AFL-CIO," according to a COPE memo. Labor campaigned successfully for Maryland's Republican Sen. Charles Mathias -- union chief George Meany's own Senator. Thus, it fought Republicans in such a fashion that the "anti-incumbent" sentiment did not wash away its few GOP allies.

And unioin men broke Ohio's Gov. John Gilligan because he intervened in labor's circles by maneuvering the ouster of his political opponent Frank King from the Ohio AFL-CIO ("State Fed") presidency. King is an intimate of Meany who long has disliked Gilligan.

It would take an encyclopedia-sized volume to describe the costly and imaginative COPE tactics.

So here's just one example: in mid-October, national COPE director Al Barkan dispatched letters to ALL national and international union presidents. In effect, he said: Dear Brother -- Enclosed is a sample letter you might want to send to all your members urging them to vote for our friends. I have a copy of the sample letter. In fact, several sample letters. An early one mentions Watergate. The last one ignores the scandal. But both warn of coming depression and unemployment if labor's allies are defeated and a veto-proof People's Congress didn't materialize.

Scores of international presidents then dispatched individual letters to all their members. These communications followed the Barkan sample closely. Of course, in each state and congressional district the specific names of endorsed candidates were inserted. Thus, Pennsylvania union members received a pro-Schweiker letter signed by their national president, and those in Colorado got a pro-Gary Hart missive.

Millions of these letters went into the mails from the AFL-CIO leadership alone. Leonard Woodcock's independent United Auto Workers union had its own mailings. So did the Teamsters.

And COPE, innovating its new special "Critical Path Method" of campaigning, included do-it-yourself prepared literature. One memo said: "The materials on these pages (in a four-page proof sheet -- VR) are suggested flyers for local unions and local central bodies (of which there are some 900--VR) to produce and distribute to their members. The only changes required would be addition of the candidate's name, where noted, and the office he seeks. Theses can be taken intact to a printer, making unnecessary any composition costs. In some instances, perhaps the flyers can be localized (by adding language briefly describing certain issues). Where this is possible, it will strengthen the impact of the material." Sort of prefabrictated politics!

It was a smashing offensive. It's thrust was -- stop the "runaway inflation." Last Monday, Election Eve, Meany and Barkan expected to pick up 25 House seats. Tuesday night they were startled by the inpouring into the House of 45 new labor allies.

As Meany has said, labor's political machine is the nation's best. I believe it is, in all but name, a third major political party. It is the only steadily viable party. It did not sink as did the Republiccans in the 1964 election after which GOP national chairman Ray Bliss said: "We'll have to look in an insane asylum for someone to run in 1968." COPE didn't founder after Dick Nixon's '68 victory though it blasted him right up to the polls' closing that year. Nor did COPE sink in the Nixon anti-Democratic holocaust of '72.

These labor politicos do their homework, oil their machinery and computers, allocated skilled manpower and scientific equipment the year round. They never stop. In British terms, labor's party has a parliamentary majority. A heavy one.

It's a veto-proof Congress all right, but will success spoil it? Will it take discipline? Or will it run away and dump its rider in a wild stampede in a new-fashioned McGovern-type rodeo?

U.S. Chopper Fleet can't Handle Arab Oil Takeover

WASHINGTON--In an earlier report, we told of grim, hushed talk in the Washington policy councils about possible military action to break the oil squeeze and save the West from economic ruin.

This could take the form, we reported, of a Marine assault upon the oil fields of Libya. According to one estimate, two Marine divisions could seize and hold these rich fields.

But we have now learned that the helicopter carrier fleet, which would be needed to spearhead such an assault, is in sad fighting condition. The seven multimillion-dollar carriers are literally falling apart. Their hulls are rusting through, helicopter facilities unsafe, living quarters fouled with sewage, galleys full of roaches and blood banks rotting.

A secret series of surveys now being conducted by the highest Navy inspector, Rear Adm. John Bulkeley, indicates the decrepit helicopter carrier fleet may be unmatched since Abraham's Lincoln's broken-down Civil War fleet.

Bulkeley's urgent reports are going to only 22 admirals, plus Marine Commandant R.E. Cushman. But a Navy seadog, alarmed over the condition of the fleet, arranged to deliver the first secret inspection report to us at an out-of-state rendezvous. The findings have been confirmed by our own investigation.

Each carrier can deliver 2,000 airborne Marine assault troops with full equipment and artillery swiftly to any trouble spot in the world. These leathernecks are supposed to be our modern minutemen, ready to assault an enemy stronghold, guard a canal or rescue American nationals caught in a flash revolution.

The papers in our possession deal only with the USS Okinawa, but high Navy sources have confided that the same conditions exist on all seven helicopter carriers.

The Bulkeley inspection team checked out the Okinawa under sea-going conditions during the week of October 7. The ship, reported the admiral, has become so "degraded" that "immediate attention" is vital.

The carrier's radar is no longer able to scan the skies properly. Its electronic equipment cannot tell whether an approaching plane is friend or foe. Its weapons test equipment is "uncalibrated and inoperative."

Even the elevators for bringing up cargo and weapons are "unsafe and unreliable."

The "heat stress, airborne noise and sanitation conditions are totally unacceptable, and must also receive priority," the report adds. Most of the ship's boiler casings sizzle at "200 to 300 degress F." making them dangerous to work near.

"There are cockroach infestations, unclean conditions in the food service areas and unsatisfactory procedures for the handling of potable water," continues the complaints.

The sewage system has "no mechanical seals (and), as a result, raw sewage will leak out to the decks or the pump rooms where it can be tracked through the ship." This creates "an evironment in which harmful bacteria could..disable the crew."

In case of an emergency, it is vital to get the helicopters on deck rapidly. Yet neither aircraft elevator operates "in the automatic mode and apparently have not for a long time."

And when the Marines' jeeps and other vehicles aboard the carrier are being repaired, there is no proper ventilation system to remove the carbon monoxide if the motors is are running.

Neither the air compressors nor airconditioning work well, and the propulsion system needed to keep the ship going is rusting. A last straw: Even the clapper in the ship's bell is missing.

Footnote: We will give more details of the Bulkeley report and the Navy's reply in a future column.

FISH TALE: Iceland Products, Inc.' which advertises "The Best Fish Come from Iceland," has actually been shipping fish caught in the waters off South America and Africa.

Milwaukee school officials first complained that the fish they were getting from Iceland Products were dark. gray, soft and with a "strong, old fish taste." The school authorities questioned the fishes' origins.

Iceland Products president Othar Hansson conceded to us that the fish never swan the Icelandic seas. In switching from cod to whiting, a naturally darker fish, schools sometimes find it's like moving "from Cadillac to Honda." he said.

Hansson voluntarily submits all his fish to federal inspection, unlike many distributors who send out their products unchecked for either quality or safety.

St. Louis killings baffle police

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The puzzling, gangland-style killings of a druggist and his teen-age clerk here Sunday have left police baffled.

Bernard Grossman, 45, operator of the Hampton Plaza Pharmacy in south St. Louis, and Susan Psaris, 18, were found shot to death early Sunday on a south St. Louis County high school athletic field, just a few hours after they were reported missing from the drug store.

There was little money and no narcotics missing from the store and Grossman's body contained $32, said police, who were admittedly without a motive for the slayings.

"We can't tell you much," said St. Louis Homicide Detective Herbert Riley. "We don't understand it."

Grossman, of suburban Creve Coeur, and Miss Psaris, of St. Louis, were each shot once in the back of the head with a small caliber weapon, police said.

Both were discovered by a morning jogger lying face down near a cinder track circling the Affton High School football field.

They had vanished from Grossman's drug store Saturday night and were reported missing after customers found the store empty.

It was the second such disappearance in St. Louis within 14 days.

Fred Gent, 21, and Todd Friedman, 22, vanished Oct. 28 from a Radio Shack store in Florissant and are still missing.

Police said the two incidents appeared to be unrelated but were still investigating some similarities. A $10,000 reward has been offered for information leading to discovery of Gent and Friedman, but police have few leads.

Authorities said Grossman and Miss Psaris were apparently shot Saturday night.

A woman living near the high school told police she heard what appeared to be two gunshots about 9 p.m. Saturday, but thought they were connected with another incident police were already investigating.

A jogger using the track about that time saw what he thought were two mannequinns lying alongside the track, but did not report the incident until Sunday, police said.

No signs of violence were found at the store. About $40 was missing, but $489 in cash and checks were found in the cash drawer, leading police to discount robbery as a motive.

However, authorities were investigating five robberies that occurred at the pharmacy during the last two years for possible clues to the shootings.

Councilman takes oath

Kenneth Martin, left, newly appointed as acting councilman by the East Prairie City Council, was administered the oath of office Thursday night by City Clerk Webb DeField. Martin replaces Wayne Presson, who resigned from the council in October, and will serve until the city election next April.

October funds

The Scott County Family Service Office, 312 E. Center St., disbursed funds totaling $151,479 in October, with the greatest part being paid to the aid to dependent children program.

Breman L. Montgomery, county director, reported state supplemental payments of $21,587 were paid to 692 persons. These persons were transferred to the new federal supplemental security income payroll and also remained eligible for a supplemental payment from the state. These received payments under the new SSI program and the state supplemental program.

A total of 246 persons who received state supplemental payments only in the amount of $10,303. This group previously received old age assistance, permanent and total disability, or aid to the blind program and were not eligible for the new SSI program.

There were 912 families with 2,162 children who received a total of $106,374 in the aid to dependent children category, averaging $116.64 per family.

General relief funds of $9,269 went to 138 families consisting of 155 persons, with a family check averaging $67.17 per family.

Twenty-one persons received a total of $3,836 in nursing care supplement payments during October.

One person received a $110 blind pension.

Child welfare services were provvided for 171 children, 228 children were given preventive services and $3,215 was expended from the County Court payroll for aid to dependent children foster care for 35 children in foster care.

Thirty adults received services during October, 28 of whom were given protective services and two of whom were given preventive services.

Officials estimate 60,000 fish killed

MALDEN, Mo. (AP)—State officials have estimated the value of nearly 60,000 fish killed in an incident in southeast Missouri at about $3,300.

Conservation Department biologists continued to investigate the kill today, claiming its cause remained unknown.

Officials said a New Madrid County farmer first reported the kill Wednesday. They said it affected 10 miles of drainage ditch and stream below the Malden Sewage Treatment Plant.

About 53,000 minnows along with bullheads, carp, sunfish and pickerel were killed, officials said.

Thiefs hits farm near Bloomfield

Sheriff Ralph Mouser said the theft occurred sometime over the weekend.

Firemen called to false alarms

Firemen were called to two false alarms early Sunday morning, according to Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer.

Linnemeyer said the calls were made about 1:15 a.m., apparently by the same woman. She told firemen the fires were at 316 Sunset Drive and 214 Dixie St.

In fact, until the automobile came along kerosene was the major product of oil refineries, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Because it burned slowly, it was used to light lamps, heat homes and cook food. Gasoline, too, was a refinery by-product. Because it exploded when ignited, it was often dumped into rivers and creeks for disposal.

Miss Tucker, Johnson wed

Marilyn Sue Tucker and Terry Bryan Johnson were united in marriage at 7 p.m. Oct. 26 at Shady Acres Church of Christ.

Wesley Cowan of Essex officiated at the cereomony, and Barbara Smith was in charge of music. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Tucker of Gray Ridge, and the goom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas L. Davenport of Memphis, Tenn.

A triple-arched candelabrum flanked by two spiral holders accented the center background, with arrangements in fall flowers in yellow and bronze tones as pedestal accents.

The parents' pews were decorated with miniature matching arrangements in fall colors and were marked with yellow ribbons.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal-length gown of candlelight chiffon and imported Chantilly lace, designed by William Cahill. The princess silhouette was fashioned with a lace bodice, high neck, English net yoke and full bishop sleeves with lace cuffs. The flowing skirt formed a full, lace-bordered, chapel-length train in the back.

Tiny seed pearls covered a colonial cap to which was secured a veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white snowdrift palms and yellow roses mixed with white baby's breath and bonsai ferns.

Matron of honor was Sondra Talkington of Gallatin, Tenn. sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Melanie Bain and Susan Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., sister-in-law of the groom. The attendants wore floor-length gowns of mint green polyester jersey.

Kira Talkington of Gallatin, Tenn., niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed like the attendants.

Ringbearer was Keith Talkington of Gallatin, nephew of the bride.

Darryl Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Danny Talkington of Gallatin, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert B. Fisher of Memphis.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length dress of blue polyester jersey while the groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of pink polyester knot. Both wore orchid corsages coordinated to match their ensembles.

Mrs. Lula Tucker and Mrs. Edna Coffey, grandmothers of the bride, were honored guests.

Jean Shepard of Memphis attended the guestbook.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship room.

Mrs. Ivan Pulling, Mrs. Robert Mouser, Mrs. Phillip Short and Mrs. Robert Isbell, aunt of the bride, were servers.

A white embossed satin cloth overlaid with yellow tulle was caught up with yellow ribbon and net. Fall flowers were used to decorate the top of the wedding cake, and silver serving accessories were placed on each end of the table.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Fisher, Barbara Jackson, Lynn L. Bar, Kathy Shepard, Linda Shepard, Jean Shepard, Mrs. Michael Pera, Lewis R. Harris Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gerald R. Rossi, Michael Rossi, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Adams Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Adams and Warren Adams of Memphis, Tenn.; Sheila Gaylord of St. Louis; and Linda Shipman and Phyllis Mitchell of St. Charles.

A wedding trip to New Orleans, La., followed.

The new Mrs. Johnson is a graduate of Richland High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau. She is presently employed as sales assistant at E.H. Crump and Co. in Memphis. Johnson is a graduage of Memphis State University and is an account executive at E.H. Crump and Co. The couple lives in Memphis.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Bryan Johnson

Ann Landers

Dog's bite often causes psycholoigical damage

Dear Ann Landers: Our nephew, seven years old, was bitten by a dog he tried to pet. The child spent the first six years of his life on a farm and loves animals. The bite was not serious, but the incident caused such emotional trauma that now the child goes into a panic whenever he sees a dog, even a tiny poodle on the lap of an older woman.

Please advise parents on how to teach their children to protect themselves against strange dogs. Of course, the real solution would be an ironclad leash law in every city -- but it's like wishing for the moon. Thanks, Ann. — Concerned Citizen

Dear C. C.: I checked with the Chicago Health Dept. and learned that most dog bite victims are boys between five and nine years of age. And, I was told the psychological damage is usually worse than the bite.

Most dogs bite because they feel threatened or have been provoked. So -- parents should teach their children, (1) stay away from strange dogs, (2) don't talk to them or try to pet them, and (3) never tease a dog that is fenced in or tied up. Some dogs, if irritated, can jump a fence or break loose from a rope. It is unwise to wave a stick (or any object that might be perceived as a weapon) in a dog's face.

Children should be told : " 'If a strange dog growls at you or appears to be ready to attack, never run or scream. Stand still, with your arms at the side and speak softly to the animal. If the dog attacks, cover your face with arms crossed. If the dog starts to leap, get down on the ground, belly down, and cover your head with your arms.

Every dog bite, no matter how trivial, should be reported to the police or the health department. And one last thing -- if there is no leash law in your city, lobby for one.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 17 and have a sister who is 15. Recently I read my sister's diary. I realize it was wrong, but I did it anyway.

Now I know that she and her boyfriend are involved in some very heavy pettting. What's even worse, her boyfriend does not believe in God. Do you think I should tell my mother or keep quiet? I know it would break Mom's heart if she knew what was going on. Please advise me. -- Very Much Undecided

Dear Much: M.Y.O.B. You had no business snooping. Don't compound the wrongdoing by finking on your sister. It will not change her behavior nor will it help her boyfriend believe in God, but it will most assuredly destroy your sister's belief in YOU.

Dear Ann Landers: I remember watching my mother and grandmother go through menopause -- the hot flashes and unbearable discomfort. I always thought when it hit me I'd know, but now I'm not sure.

I am 42 and have these sudden rushes of heat waves that come on unexpectedly. I perspire as if I were in a steam bath. Sometimes they last for 20 minutes.

I can't sleep a whole night through. In the morning I'm soaking wet. I mentioned this to a friend and she said I was too young for menopause. It didn't hit her till she was 52. When I phoned our family doctor he said, "Learn to live with it." Any advice? -- Miserable

Dear M.: Make an appointment with another doctor -- this time a gynecologist. Menopause hits women at different times. There's no set age. And you don't have to "learn to live with it" either. Medication can give you relief. And when you GET releif, phone your old family doctror and tell him about it. He needs to go back to medical school for a refresher course.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband crawled out from under the bathroom sink, rose to his feet, summoned the entire family about him and said, "I suppose you all wonder why I have gathered you here today."

We all nodded soberly.

"I have just cleaned out the trap under this washbowl and I would like to inventory the items I have removed: 14 toothpaste caps, one shampoo cap, a blue balloon, a plastic naval officer, a wine bottler cork, three rubber bands, a dime, and a class ring from a girl's school in Peoria."

"If it's silver, the dime is mine," said my son.

"Don't interrupt ... a Barbie bra, a pencil stub, a tooth, possibly human, a luggage key, 17 rusted bobby pins and 85 pounds of hair. What are we going to do about it?"

"Are you suggesting a garage sale?" I ventured.

"I am not suggesting a garage sale," he said between clenched teeth, "I am suggesting that this family stop littering the plumbing. Do you know what really aggravates me??"

"I know," said a son raising his hand. "The night we left on 32 lights and no one was home."

"No , it was my feet hanging out the window last summer on our vacation.,,

"You are all wrong," I said. "It's standing in front of an open refrigerator door like you're waiting for change."

"This is not a game show," said my husband evenly. "This is serious. We are the only family in the block who has a live-in plumber who retired at age 23 to live out the rest of his life in Hilton Head. A week has not gone by that something in this bathroom has not bubbled, hissed, dripped, trickled, or run over. I don't mind admitting I'm not the world's greatest plumber...why are you snickering?"

"I'm sorry. It's just that no one reseats a toilet with Play-Doh."

"I do the best I can living with four people who are not ready yet for indoor plumbing. Now, here is the plan. In the future, if you have hair falling out, either place it in the nearest receptacle or braid it back into your original hair. Replace all caps on their original bottles or tubes and report any suspicious gurgling noises you hear immediately."

"By the way, Dad," said our son, "here's a President Ford WIN button that was stopping up the drain in the shower. Why were you wearing a WIN button in the shower?"

I could hardly wait for the answer as my next question was, "Where?"

Bond to recommend funding

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP- Gov. Christopher S. Bond has agreed to recommend full funding for the commission on the Status of Women in his upcoming budget request to the state legislature, Geoffrey McCarron said today.

McCarron, head of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, said Bond has agreed that the commission, which received no money for this fiscal year, should continue because of the changing role of women not only in the labor force but in the home and as consumers."

The budget request will total slightly more than $54,000.

Betty Adams, chairman of the commission, pointed out that lack of funding has hampered the commission.

Noting that its funding has dropped from $10,000 two years ago to nothing this year, she said the reduction was due to the commission's stands on the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion. The commission has supported ERA and abortion as an individual decision.

"We are being penalized for the positions we have taken on these two controversial issues," she commented.

Collegiate sports changing

EDITORS NOTE: A revolution is brewing in college athletics. The women have joined up, and there's nothing the men can do about it. The government has stepped in with a law called Title IX, and to hear some tell it, the day of big-time college athletics is either over or on the way out. Here is the first of a five-part series on the role of women, who are going from "bake sales to half the pie."

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to college athletics, women have always been good sports.

The men had their training tables; the women had their bake sales. The men traveled in jumbo jets; the women drove Volkswagen buses. The men became campus heroes on Saturday; the women cheered them on.

The history of collegiate sports reflects that men have been handed their programs, facilities and equipment on silver platters. The women polished them.

But those days appear just about over because of a law which says:

"No person in the United States shall be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance..."

The law is Title IX of the 1972 Education Act, and it means that any high school or college receiving any federal funding for any reason risks losing that money if it does not provide equal athletic opportunity for women.

To some, that means major universities will have to spend millions they don't have on women's athletics; to others, it means an end to big-time college athletics. For all, it will mean some new emphasis on women's athletics, and, very possibly, less money for men.

Title IX already has meant new athletic scholarships and new money for women's sports at the collegiate level. When all the changesoccur, the face of collegiate sports may be changed forever.

What is abundantly clear in Title IX is that universities must provide teams, coaches, facilities and some scholarship aid to women who wish to participate in competitive sports. Whether the women have the same athletic skills as the men is irrelevant; equal opportunity must be provided.

It would seem that in complying with Title IX colleges have three choices: (1) Pay for the increased women's programs by cutting funds in other areas of the university, (2) Pay for them by cutting spending for men's athletics, or (3) Find more money somewhere.

Whatever happens, new money for women won't always be provided willingly.

"The government has no business getting into the athletic business," says Big Sky Athletic Commissioner John Roning, who claims Title IX "will be a serious threat to intercollegiate athletics through diversion of funds to women's programs."

The same subject drew a slightly different reaction from Katherine Ley, president of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. She said Title IX "does more for women than anything since women got the right to vote."

So why can't we switch on the tube this Saturday, settle back into an easy chair and watch women knock each others' brains out?

Well, besides the pervasive reason that these things take time, money and inclination, it's because Congress passes laws and the executive branch enforces them.

One bit of testimony to the obstacles the women's sports movement faces is that Title IX has been on the books since 1972—unenforced—while women have remained on the sidelines—uninvolved.

"I'm surprised we haven't been taken to court for foot-dragging," says one knowledgeable insider at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the federal agency charged with writing the enforcement regulations for Title IX.

HEW finally proposed last June a series of tentative enforcement regulations that were designed to gauge the public reaction to Title IX. Interested parties had until Oct. 15 to comment.

Now that HEW has those comments, it will study them and write a series of final regulations. They will be completed early next year, and then go to President Ford for his signature. If he signs it, Title IX, which was passed two years ago, will at last become a law that the government can force colleges to comply with.

Since almost every college receives federal money, and since few can do without those dollars, very few will have any choice but to comply with Title IX. A violation in any program on campus conceivably could mean a loss of all federal funds for the school.

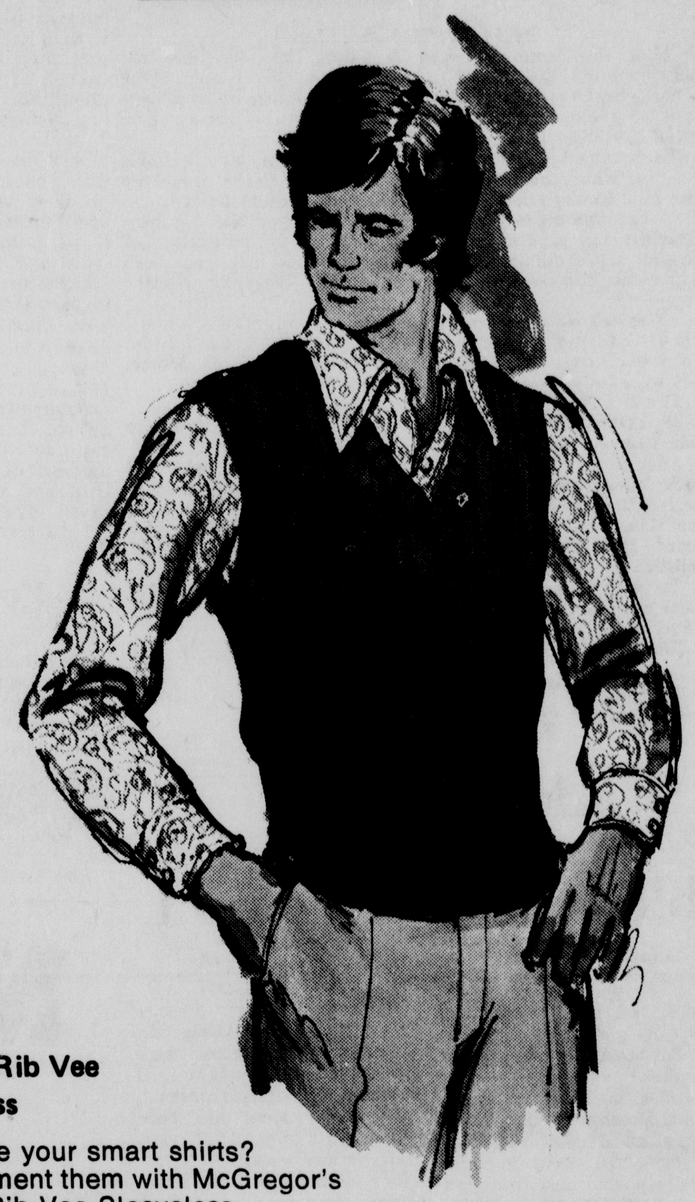

Many colleges across the country aren't waiting for the final regulations. Their budgets for women's sports already are soaring.

Gwen Gregory, an HEW lawfor writing the preliminary regulations and now is working on the final ones, went on a 12-city tour this summer to try and allay doom sayers.

Miss Gregory, an official in HEW's civil rights division, says the comments to the preliminary regulations have been voluminous and chock full of misunderstandings. She says the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which reportedly has spent $300,000 in its anti-Title IX lobbying effort, is a leader in both areas.

Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee were the only brothers to sign the Declaration of Independence.

What's the law?

The case of the crap-shooting loser

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

When the dominoes began to gallop, the odds were that Rocky's money was riding on them. From 1961 through 1969, he made frequent trips to Las Vegas and consistently lost large sums of money at the dice tables. Nevertheless, like a punch-drunk fighter, he kept going back.

Each time he deducted the cost of the trip as a business expense. When the Internal Revenue Service finally caught up with him, Rocky's deductions for the trips were disallowed.

"What d'ya mean you won't allow them?" protested Rocky. "The tax law says that expenses incurred 'for production of income' are deductible. And while the odds may have been against me, the only reason I went to Las Vegas was to make money."

"You've got to be kidding," was the answer. "You're a loser! Not even an adding machine could get you even. Consequently, the cost of those trips weren't for the production of income, they were for your own sadistic pleasure."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Rocky to deduct the cost of the trips from his taxes?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Rocky's experience at the crap table bore eloquent testimony to the fact that the odds were against him making a profit shooting dice. What's more, the judge noted, with Rocky's consistent loss record, it is difficult to believe that even Rocky, himself, realistically expected to turn a profit out of his gambling.

There fore, concluded the judge, the cost of his trips to Las Vegas were not incurred "for production of profit" so as to be deductible.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Low-sugar diet problems

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last December I had a three-hour tolerance test for diabetes. It was 303, 281 and 214. The doctor told me to lose weight. I weighed around 140 and went on a sugar-free and low carbohydrate diet and lost about 20 pounds. My blood last February was 139 and in June it was only 100.

Now my trouble is I've always been one who has a problem with constipation. I used to eat a lot of bran flakes and prunes, lots of fruit and juices. I had to eliminate these on the diet. So, now I really have a problem. About twice a week I have to take something. I get a lot of gas pains, gas that just seems to go around and around and I can't seem to get rid of it. What can I take so I can have a better bowel movement without taking fruit and bran? The doctor says I have to stay off sweets.

I also have high blood pressure. The last reading was 138 over 84. I have been taking medicine for this. But lately, I've had a very slow pulse. I wonder if it is because of the blood pressure medicine? When I take it the pulse is between 55 and 60. I'm 58 years old.

DEAR READER — Most diets that eliminate carbohydrates cause the kind of problem you are experiencing. After all, the natural bulk in our diet is dependent upon such good natural foods as cereals, vegetables and fruit. These are important to normal bowel function. Some authorities think their absence leads to many colon problems, including an increased likelihood of having cancer of the colon.

So, you have a special problem. I would wonder if your doctor would not be willing to try letting you include some cereal and unsweetened fruit and vegetables in your diet as long as you didn't gain your weight back? With your blood glucose sugar level at 100 you are in very good control and he has accomplished a lot for you.

If you can't do that, I would suggest you take a bulk expander to replace your natural food bulk. These should be agar-agar or psyllium seed products. A good one that you can get is Metamucil. These are not chemical laxatives, which I disapprove of because they can be harmful to your bowel function. Your colon will not function normally until you have a reasonable amount of bulk in your diet or replace diet bulk with a bulk expander.

About the blood pressure. The medicine is responsible for helping to lower your pressure to the levels you now have. Those levels are all right. If you stopped your medicine, it might go back up, although some people continue to have lower pressure after they have lost weight. The slow pulse rate can also be from the medicine. However, the rates you describe are all right. I have seen many healthy, young athletes with slow heart rates, even slower than yours.

If you still have any excess fat you can identify on your body, you should go ahead and lose it. After that, perhaps your diet and medicine program can be changed toward normal.

Cook fined $15

PORTAGEVILLE-- Billy Wayne Cook was levied a $15 fine Saturday for driving without a license by Police Judge Taylor Noles Sr.

No. 1

A .38-caliber pistol and $37 in pennies were reported stolen from Wimpy's Liquor Store, 815 W. Malone Ave., between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 8 15 a.m. Friday.

Police said entry was apparently gained by cutting a nut and bolt head from a locking bar over the back entrance.

World News in Brief

TEL AVIV (AP) — Tel Aviv slum dwellers rioted Sunday to protest the government's new austerity program, but Premier Yitzhak Rabin warned more severe measures would come soon. To halt the drain on foreign currency reserves, Rabin's government devalued the pound 43 per cent, froze wages, and hiked food, gasoline and electricity prices, banned imports of luxury items for six months, and levied new taxes.

MOSCOW (AP) — Leading Jewish activists told Sen. James Buckley on Sunday that the Kremlin has increased its harassment of Jewish dissidents since the announcement in Washington of an agreement to let more Jews emigrate from the Soviet Union. The Conservative-Republican from New York met for 1½ hours at the home of Jewish scientist Alexander Lerner with 16 of Moscow's most active Jewish leaders, most of them denied permission to leave the country.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — The president of the International Chess Federation said Sunday that Bobby Fischer's chess crown will go to a Russian if the dispute between the American and the federation isn't settled by April 1. Dr. Max Euwe said in an interview he will strip Fischer of his title unless he agrees to defend it under the scoring rules set by the federation.

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates cut their oil prices by 3½ per cent Sunday, but they also hiked taxes and royalties charged foreign oil companies by 17 per cent, making it unlikely that consumers will get any reduction. Iran, Kuwait and Iraq refused to go along with the move.

SWANTON, Vt. (AP) — Because of America's worsening economic picture, the U.S. Border Patrol says fewer aliens are trying to illegally slip over the border from Canada to New England.

"I think the reason it (illegal immigration) is down is employment is not as good in the United States as last year ... employment is tighter," explained John K. Lovejoy, chief patrol agent along the international border from the Franklin-Clinton County line in New York through Oxford County, Maine.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The United States will consume all its known energy resources within 60 years, says a Yale physicist.

Prof. Arvid Herzenberg said in an interview that at today's consumption rate, and without the discovery of new resources, U.S. oil supplies will be depleted by 1988, gas by 1989, coal by 2032.

But 'the important thing is that one is taking quite a gamble on these working out," he said.

Tools, dogs are stolen

BENTON-- A box of tools was stolen at McMullin Gin Co., and two dogs were taken from homes in Morley, over the weekend according to Scott County Sheriff John Dennis.

The box of tools was discovered missing about 9:55 a.m. Saturday at the gin. Their value was not determined, Dennis said. The theft occured Friday night or Saturday morning.

Two beagles were taken from homes four blocks apart sometime Friday night in Morley, Dennis said.

The beagles were chained in the yards of the Rev. Robert Carrow and Blake Johnson. In both cases the chains were cut, Dennis said.

The dogs were valued at $75 to $80 each.

Michigan state upsets O state

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When is a touchdown not a touchdown? When the play starts after the final gun ... and when it's an illegal play, anyway.

Both those things happened to No. 1-ranked Ohio State Saturday, although in the confusion over whether or not time had expired before Ohio State's Brian Baschnagel picked up a loose ball and darted into the end zone one important fact was somewhat overlooked — the play would been nullified by an illegal procedure penalty and would not have been rerun since a game can end on an infraction by the offensive team.

"It was the ruling of the back judge and the field judge that time had expired before the last play," Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said Sunday night in the wake of Michigan State's controversial 16-13 triumph over Ohio State.

"But the referee also told me they were not set for a full second before the snap. The field judge was ready to throw the flag, but he didn't because the game was over."

And that seemed to put a damper on Coach Woody Hayes' claim that "they (the players) say there were still two seconds on the clock when the ball was snapped. The ball was fumbled by the quarterback on the exchange, Baschnagel picked it up and took it into the end zone."

That was the biggest upset on one the looniest days in an already ridiculous college football season, a day that left many of the bowl committees looking like candidates for the funny farm, although Ohio State's closest challengers made their moves to supplant the Buckeyes in the ratings.

Oklahoma, runner-up to Ohio State in The Associated Press poll, battered Missouri 37-0; third-ranked and Orange Bowl-bound Alabama destroyed Louisiana State 30-0 and No. 4 Michigan shaded Illinois 14-6 and took a one-game lead over Ohio State in the Big Ten's Rose Bowl race. After that, though, the roof fell in:

Southern Methodist 18, fifth-ranked Texas A&M 14; Georgia 17, sixth-ranked Sugar Bowl-bound Florida 16; North Carolina State 12, seventh-ranked Cotton Bowl-bound Penn State 7; Baylor 34, 12th-ranked Texas 24; Brigham Young 21, 16th-ranked Arizona State 18; Kentucky 38, Peach Bowl-bound Vanderbilt 12; Tenth-ranked Auburn 24, Sun Bowl-bound Mississippi State 20, and Clemson 54, Sun Bowl-bound North Carolina 32.

Eighth-ranked Notre Dame, headed for the Orange Bowl and a rematch with Alabama, and No. 15 Houston, which will oppose N.C. State in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, had the weekend off while ninth-ranked Nebraska, Florida's Sugar Bowl foe, disposed of Iowa State 23-13 and No. 11 Southern California moved into the Pacific-8 Conference lead and the Rose Bowl driver's seat by trouncing Stanford 34-10.

Miami of Ohio, rated No. 13 and reportedly set for the Tangerine Bowl, wrapped up its second consecutive Mid-American Conference crown by edging Kent State 19-17. Maryland, No. 14 and headed for the Liberty Bowl, crushed Villanova 41-0 and Fiesta Bowl-bound Oklahoma State, ranked No. 17, trimmed Kansas State 29-5.

Rounding out The Second Ten, No. 18 California walloped Washington 52-26; Pitt, tied for 19th with Texas Tech, whipped Temple 35-24 and Tech blanked Texas Christian 28-0. Tech has accepted a bid to the Peach Bowl ... on the condition it doesn't somehow back into the Southwest Conference title and Cottn Bowl berth that nobody seems to want.

Trailing 13-3 in the fourth quarter, Michigan State battled back to overtake Ohio State on a 44-yard pass from Charley Baggett to Mike Jones and Levi Jackson's 88-yard run with just over three minutes left.

Oklahoma's Jim Littrell romped for 155 yards, Joe Washington added 143 and a touchdown and Grant Burget tallied twice as the Sooners rushed for 498 yards against Missouri.

Meanwhile, Alabama used the strong running of Willie Shelby and a 29-yard fumble return by Ricky Davis to post its 41st triumph in the last 42 regular-season games and hand LSU its worst setback since 1963 and its worst shutout defeat in 13 sasons under Coach Charlie McClendon.

Gordon Bell ran eight yards for one score and Dennis Franklin smashed over from a yard out to give Michigan a 140 first-half lead and the Wolverines held on to defeat Illinois.

The Southwest Conference chase remained jumbled when SMU upset frontrunning Texas A&M. Oscar Roan picked up a teammate's fumble and raced 14 yards for one touchdown, Ricky Wesson darted 20 yards for another and Louie Kelcher and Steve Morton led an inspired defense.

Baylor moved into second place, one-half game behind the Aggies, by defeating Texas' six-in-a-row champs for the first time since 1956 as Neal Jeffrey threw two touchdown passes and ran for one score.

Georgia's defeat of Florida lifted the Bulldogs into second place in the Southeastern Conference, one game behind Alabama.

Fullback Stan Fritts scored one touchdown and passed 22 yards to Pat Hovance for another as N.C. State kayoed Penn State. Freshman Monte Anthony ran for two scores and led Nebraska past Iowa State. And Secdrick McIntyre's 54-yard run in the third period — his second touchdown — enabled Auburn to withstand two late Mississippi State scores.

Anthony Davis scored twice and passed for a third TD as Southern Cal drubbed Stanford and took a one-game lead in the Pac-8. Dave Draudt's 39-yard field goal with 10 seconds left lifted Miami over Kent State.

Tim Wilson's two touchdowns paced Maryland past Villanova and Gary Sheide's two scoring passes enabled BYU to edge Arizona State and maintain its half-game lead over Arizona in the Western Athletic Conference.

Bob Shephard's 83-yard interception return highlighted Oklahoma State's rout of Kansas State. Steve Bartkowski fired touchdown passes of 56 and 43 yards and Howard Strickland scored three times — once on a 68-yard run — in California's romp over Washington.

Freshman Elliott Walker, subbing for injured All-American Tony Dorsett, rushed for 169 yards and four touchdowns in leading Pitt over Temple. And sub quarterback Don Roberts directed four scoring drives as Texas Tech trounced Texas Christian.

Hawks claim title

By BILL HARRISON

BELL CITY — Randy Hagar and David Felter paced the Kelly Hawks to the championship of the Bell City B team tournament Here Saturday night. The Hawks defeated the host Cubs, 62-53.

The Hawks were seeded number one in the tournament and Bell City had been seeded third at the beginning of the week long event.

Coach Ed Street employed a man to man press defense against the Cubs and coach Ronnie Stone's team had trouble getting the ball down the court and the defense caused the Cubs to force most of their shots.

The Cubs used a man to man press also and both teams looked a little tired before the game came to an end.

The Hawks used their height, 6-5 Hagar and 6-1 Felter to block big Sol Byrd off the boards in the first half. Bell City jumped to a 14-12 first period lead but with Hagar and Felter hitting the offensive boards in the second quarter, the Hawks erased the lead with 15 points while holding the Cubs to 10 Kelly led 27-24 at the half.

Byrd finally went to work in the later part of the third period and Bell City caught up with the Hawks but soon grew tired from the full court press.

The Cubs had played the night before against the Zalma Bulldogs and probably weren't as rested as the Hawks. The Cubs were also without the services of Leonard Gross who has academic problems.

The Puxico Indians used a full court press and a 1-2-2 zone defense to win third plac against the Advance Hornets 59-36.

The zone forced Steve Vavak outside and the sharpshooter hit only 17 points for the night.

Puxico forced the bigger Hornets into too many physical and mental errors.

The Hornets defense was unable to keep pace with the smaller but quick guards and forwards of the Indians and after a close first period in which Advance led 9-4 guard Morgan Sifford took command and his ball handling and shooting gave Puxico 16 points in the second period as Advance shot poor and canned only six.

DeCoster finished second in each of the two 40-minute heat races.

The triumph gave DeCoster the series point lead after five of the eight American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned races.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has accepted a bid to the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., where the Atlantic Coast Conference football team will face Mississippi State on Dec. 28.

Athletic Director Homer Rice said the decision came after the players voted unanimously to accept the bid.

On Saturday, the Tar Heels lost to Clemson 54-32.

It will mak the team's fourth bowl appearance in five years and their second in the Sun Bowl. In 1972, North Carolina defeated Texas Tech 32-28 in the Sun Bowl.

State prep track meet to travel

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri state high school outdoor track meet will have a change of scenery.

The state High School Activities Association has announced that the meet will not be held in Columbia as in past years but will be moved to various sites throughout the state each year.

This year's 4-A meet will be staged at Parkway North High School in St. Louis May 17 and at Center High school in Kansas City next year.

The 3-A meet, also May 17, will be held in Mexico. The sites for the 2-A and 1-A meets, scheduled May 10, have not been set.

Officials decided on the new plan after the Big Eight Conference scheduled its outdoor track meet at the University of Missouri May 16 and 17.

Big Red underdog

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We've never been to the playoffs, so why should anyone get excited?" an unperplexed quarterback Jim Hart asked.

And, in accepting Hart's approach, the St. Louis Cardinals are shrugging off their three-point underdog status against the Minnesota Vikings in their National Football League game tonight.

The oddsmakers' affront is nothing new for the Cardinals, who carry a 7-1 record into the nationally televised game.

But it may offer special incentive to Jim Otis, a running back who remembers a 14-10 loss to the Vikings, 6-2, in a preseason game.

"They're going to be surprised, that's all I've got to say," predicted Otis, who is expected to team with flashy Terry Metcalf in the Cardinals' backfield.

Confidence was also exuded along that line by Coach Don Coryell, who declared, "I like it when we're the underdog. Our team's going to play hard no matter what the odds are."

A match of Minnesota's stout defense against an explosive St. Louis offense could be a preview to NFL playoff action scheduled for next month.

If the Cards maintain their lead in the National Conference East and the Vikings stay atop the National Conference Central, the teams will clash again Dec. 22 in Minnesota.

"But we better not think that far ahead," warned Coryell, the coach of a team which is coming off three straight 4-9-1 seasons.

"Anything can still happen," the Cards' coach said. "We can't even think beyond this game."

St. Louis, in addition to overturning the odds, would also like to atone for previous poor showings in Monday night games.

In their last two such exposures, the Cards fell 20-17 to the San Diego Chargers in 1971 and 31-10 to the Miami Dolphins the next year.

Sports in brief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Blues moved to strengthen their defense Sunday, acquiring forwards Craig Patrick and Stan Gilbertson from the California Golden Seals for Dave Gardner and Warren "Butch" Williams in a National Hockey League trade.

Patrick, 28, rammed in 10 goals for the Seals during the 1973-74 season, while Gilbertson, 30, scored 18, and both are considered solid defensive players.

Gardner, a center, had seen limited action since coming to the Blues last season from Montreal, while Williams, a forward, had been sent to Denver of the Central Hockey League following a trial with the Blues during the 1973-74 campaign.

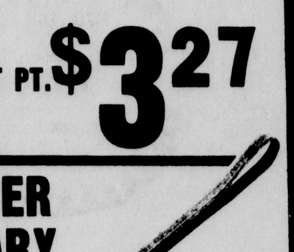

MEMPHIS (AP) — As the result of weekend football games, the Liberty Bowl Selection Committee said Sunday night that six teams remain under consideration.

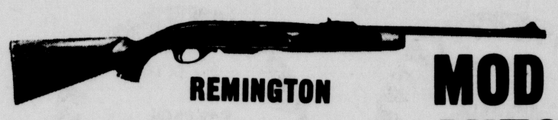

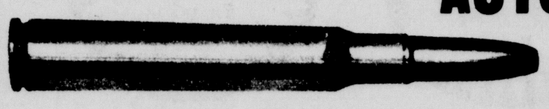

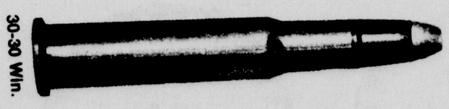

The committee said Georgia, Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Baylor and Arkansas are still in the running.

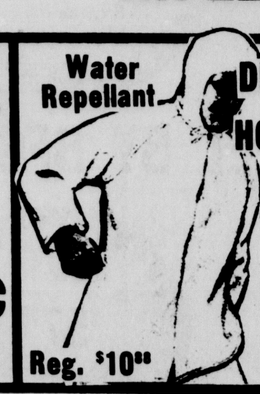

Maryland, which won a Saturday game 41-0 from Villanova, last week accepted an invitation to appear in the Dec. 16 bowl.

Officials said it will be after next Saturday, or possibly even after Nov. 23, before they announce the second team from the field of six schools.

CPSC offers football safety tips

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Football, the favorite fall pastime of many Americans, is also the most hazardous sport to play, according to the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

An estimated 300,000 children and adults are treated in hospital emergency rooms, and about 20 people die annually as a result of football-related injuries.

Staff analysis on non-professional football player injury records in Commission files shows that 40 percent of all injuries occurred amont 15 to 19 year old boys. Most injuries took place at school or at other public playing facilities.

Sprains and sprains accounted for about 30 percent of the injuries, as did severe bruises and scrapes. Broken bones followed with 22 percent and serious cuts were next with 10 per cent. While only one percent of the injuries were concussions, this type of injury may be quite serious.

Repeat injuries, particularly to the head, are the most serious threat to life, according to one researcher.

A football hazard analysis by the Commission has isolated several problem areas. One problem appears to be the inadequacy of some protective equipment. While only a small percentage of injuries were directly attributable to defective, ill-fitting or broken equipment, injuries did occur beneath the equipment, indicating that it may not be providing adequate protection.

In other cases, players sustained injuries because they had neglected to wear all their equipment during practice and play. For example, a 21-year old boy cracked the third cervical vertebra (neck) after being hit from the side. He was wearing his helmet, but not a protective collar.

A study of North Carolina igh School football players, funded by the Commission, revealed that nearly 254 percent of the injuries studied came as a result of a player receiving a hard blow from the helmet, shoulder pad or shoes of another player. This statistic led to the study recommendation that consumers, coaches and others responsible for athletic activities, demand safer equipment from manufacturers. In particular, the study said, manufacturers should be encouraged to design helmet and sholder pads with soft, external padding to better cushion a player against blows from another player's equipment. Soccer shoes were recommended over conventional shoes with long cleats to reduce ankle and knee injuries. Soccer shoes were also found to be less injurious to other players.

The Commission is supporting additional research on football and sports injuries at the University of Washington.

Based on existing injury and research data, the Commission offers the following tips for players and officials to reduce football-related injuries:

1. Choose equipment carefully. The North Carolina study pointed out that are marked differences between the effectiveness of different brands.
2. Soccer shoes are preferable to conventional football shoes.
3. Wear all equipment, even when practicing.
4. Make sure hat the playing surface is free of debris, rocks, holes, uneven surfaces and equipment.
5. Follow the rules of the game to eliminate a vast number of injuries from such illegal activities as "spearing" and "clipping".
6. Limit blocking and tackling drills during practice sessions. A significant number of injuries result from these drills.
7. Always check with a physician after an injury to make sure it is safe to resume play.

Area athletes star at SEMO

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Experience should spell the difference between the 1974-75 Southeast Missouri State University basketball Indians and their counterparts of a year ago.

Starting his fifth year as head coach, Bob Cradic says, "With experience from last year under their belts, the team should be better at ball-handling. Also, we should be making fewer floor mistakes.

Cradic cites a lack of offensive punch as one of last year's major problems, but is quick to add, "Our offense will be better this year."

Cradic and his assistant, Carroll Williams, are considering a change to a one-guard offense. Cradic commented, "This should help our rebounding, where we've been real weak for the last two years."

Steve Valli, a 6-6 senior, would be utilized as the other starting center in a two- center offense. Cradic lists Valli as the player with the most scoring punch from last year.

Vying for point position in a one-guard set wuld be Caruthersville's Joe Cagle, a 6-0 sophomore, Mark Baker (New Madrid) a 6-1 senior, and Howardville's Lennies McFerron, a 5-9 senior. Cradic expects this position to be solid, explaining that all have experience, quickness, and ball-handling ability.

Cradic claims that the Indians' offensive success this season will be largely determined by the Tribe's newcomers.

Tom Mitchell, a 6-4 junior college transfer from Iowa, is highly regarded by the coaches. According to Cradic, "It's obvious to all that Tom's starting material. Hoperfully, he'll live up to our expectations." He is a prime contender for one of the two wing positions.

The other wing position will be up for grabs. Top prospects are Randy Carter, a 6-4 junior, Garry Pirch, a 6-5 junior, and Larry Rogers, a 6-5 freshman.

Rounding out the 1974-75 Indian roster will be guards Mike .Uhls, a 6-3 junior, and Brady Howle, a 5-9 junior, and center Jim Baker, a 6-8 junior.

Cradic pointed out that this year's schedule was a tough one and probably ranks as one of the roughest in recent years.

He explained, "The MIAA was extremely tough and there were no weak teams. Rolal was predicted to finish last prior to the start of the season and they finished 7-5, tied for second."

The coach continued, "We only had two weak teams on our schedule, Peru State and Christian Brothers College, both of whom we beat easily."

Today in U. S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1974. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, World War I ended with the signing of an armistice in Marshal Foch's railway car in the forest of Compiegne, France.

On this date:

In 1620, the Pilgrims signed a compact aboard the Mayflower while anchored off Cape Cod.

In 1851, the first patent for a telescope was issued to Alvin Clark of Cambridge, Mass.

In 1889, Washington was admitted to the union as the 42nd state.

In 1921, the Washington Disarmament Conference convened.

In 1942, in World War II, the Germans occupied all of France.

Ten years ago: West Germany's ruling Christian Democratic party came out in favor of a delay in German participation in an Allied nuclear fleet proposed by the U.S. but opposed by France.

Five years ago: Anonymous critics of the Vietnam war and what they termed "big business" claimed responsibility for bomb explosions in three New York skyscrapers.

One year ago: Egypt and Israel signed a cease-fire agreement sponsored by the United States and began discussions to carry out the pact.

Today's birthdays: Former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower is 78; Comedian Jonathan Winters is 49.

Thought for today: The first recipe for happiness is: avoid too lengthy mediations on the past — Andre Maurois, French writer, 1885-1967.

End Adv for Monday, Nov. 11.

World News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lighter-than-air craft may be on the way back, more than 37 years after the fiery destruction of the dirigible Hindenberg seemed to doom the concept forever. Navy engineers are studying possible application of lighter-than-air vehicles, particularly with nuclear engines, for antisubmarine warfare and heavy cargo lifts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, preparing for his first official journey overseas, says Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned from his 17-country trip with "very encouraging" news. Ford and Kissinger discussed the secretary's 18-day trip for three hours Sunday at Camp David, Md. They plan to confer about two hours each day this week in preparation for Ford's Far East visit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal strike will begin just after midnight, but most mines already were shut for the holiday. Union and industry negotiators are optimistic about reaching a new contract. While both sides say they are making progress, a settlement appears unlikely before midweek at the earliest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up trial enters its seventh week with the jury scheduled to hear the last White House tape released by Richard M. Nixon before he resigned the presidency. With the playing of the June 23, 1972, conversation between Nixon and cover-up defendant H.R. Haldeman, Watergate prosecutors begin what they say is the most important part of their case.

People in The News

LONDON (AP) — Queer Elizabeth II and other members of the royal family have participated under the watchfu eye of the police in ceremonies honoring the dead of Worlc Wars I and II.

Uniformed and plainclothes police were present at the Cenotaph, a monument in Whitehall, to guard against terrorist bombs. More than 20 persons have been killed in England in the past year in such bombings, attributed by police to the Irish Republican Army.

LONDON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has arrived in London as United States representative at a conference for legislators from nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Melina Mercouri, star of "Never on Sunday" and numerous other plays and movies, has entered politics.

The 49-year-old actress is running on the Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement ticket for a seat in the Greek Parliament. The Nov. 17 election is the first in Greece in more than a decade.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Allison Cheek of Annandale, Va., has defied a bishop's orders and become the first woman to conduct a communion service at an Episcopal Church in the United States.

The Rev. Mrs. Cheek held the service Sunday at St. Stephen and the Incarnation Episcopal Church here.

The service was held in defiance of orders from the Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington.

The Rev. Mrs. Cheek was among 11 women elevated to the priesthood last July during a service in Philadelphia. The denomination's House of Bishops declared the ordinations invalid.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Valery and Galina Panov, the Russian-born ballet stars who struggled for two years to leave the Soviet Union, have made their debuts in Israel.

Three thousand persons, including former Premier Golda Meir, came to Mann auditorium Sunday to watch the former soloists of Leningrad's Kirov Ballet. Wave upon wave of applause greeted their performances.

The 36-year-old Jewish dancer and his non-Jewish wife are now Israeli citizens. Israel has only two small modern dance companies and a fledgling classical ballet troupe.

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The son of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, Germany's World War II "Desert Fox," has won a preliminary round in his race for mayor of Stuttgart.

Manfred Rommel, 46, running as the candidate of the conservative Christian Democratic Union, captured 44.2 per cent of the vote in this tradtional stronghold of the ruling Social Democrat party. That was more than any of his 13 other opponents, but not enough for the absolute majority needed to win.

All 14 will take part in a runoff Dec. 1, when the candidate receiving most votes will be declared mayor of this capital of the southern state of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

NEW YORK (AP) — Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was flying to New York today with a 17-member PLO delegation that will appear during the United Nations debate on Palestine, guerilla sources said. However, neither the guerrilla sources in Beirut nor authorities in New York would add any details for security reasons.

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — William L. Calley Jr., free on bail and unlikely to be confined ever again for the My Lai murders, still considers himself a lieutenant in the U.S. Army, his lawyers say. Calley, 31, was released on his own recognizance Saturday by U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott, the same judge who two months earlier had overturned Calley's conviction for killing 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968. His lawyers said Sunday that Calley's next legal step will be to inform the Army this week that he still considers himself a lieutenant in the U.S. Army and is available for duty.

GASOLINE ONCE CONSIDERED USELESS

CHICAGO (AP) — If waiting in line for gasoline makes you lose your sense of humor, try to remember that the precious fuel was once considered useless.

Jury 'hears' Nixon OK CIA involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jury in the Watergate cover-up trial, listening to a June 23, 1972, White House tape, today heard defendant H. R. Haldeman obtain the approval of former President Nixon for a plan to use the Central Intelligence Agency to choke off the original FBI investigation into Watergate.

Donning olive-green earphones, the jurors listened as Haldeman proposed that the deputy director of the CIA call the FBI and say:

"Stay the hell out of this ... We don't want you to go any further on it."

Huldeman suggests that he and defendant John D. Ehrlichman call in the two top officials of the CIA and direct them to warn off the FBI from investigating the financing of the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Shortly before the tape was played, Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy CIA director, testified that he was summoned to the White House within a few hours of the Haldeman-Nixon meeting and ordered to persuade then acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III that CIA resources were jeopardized.

The June 23 tape also involves defendant and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Nixon asks Haldeman, "Well, what the hell, did Mitchell know about this thing to any much of a degree?"

Haldeman: "I think so. I don't think he knew the details, but I think he knew."

Nixon kept the existence of the June 23 tape secret until Aug. 5, just a few days before he resigned the presidency.

On the transcript released then by Nixon, the President is heard to summarize how the CIA would be drawn into the cover-up.

That transcript quoted Nixon as saying, "They (the CIA) should call the FBI in and (unintelligible) don't go any further into this case, period."

That quote was left out of the tape played for the jury. Watergate prosecutors have expressed fear that the pardon granted Nixon from prosecution in the cover-up case and other investigations might influence the jury's willingness to convict the five defendants.

Earlier, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had agreed to defense requests that a crucial word on the tape be described as unintelligible on the transcript seen by the jury.

The word spoken by Haldeman is "Gemstone," the code name for the plan to wiretap the Democrats.

To at least one listener, the word "Gemstone" could easily be heard and recognized.

Sirica earlier denied a request for a separate trial and for a mistrial from two of the defendants in the trial.

Before the tape was played, Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testified that defendant H. R. Haldeman ordered him in June 1972, to head off part of the FBI investigation into Watergate.

Walters said he was summoned to the White House at noon on June 23, 1972, which is within a half-hour of the time former President Nixon gave his approval to the use of the CIA to short-circuit the initial FBI probe of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

Nixon's approval of the plan appears on a White House tape which Watergate prosecutors heard by jury today.

To support the evidence on the tape, the prosecutors called Walters, who quoted Haldeman as saying "the bugging of the Watergate is creating a lot of noise."

Walters said Haldeman was worried about the FBI's investigation and said, "the leads might lead to some important people."

Also attending that meeting, said Walters, were former CIA director Richard Helms and cover-up defendant John D. Ehrlichman. Except to offer the use of a telephone to call Gray, Walters said Ehrlichman took no part in the conversation.

Walters said he was directed to tell the FBI that CIA resources in Mexico would be jeopardized by continued FBI investigation of the money used to finance the break-in.

Walters testified he was ordered to go to Gray despite emphatic denials by Helms that there was any CIA connectiton to the burglary or wiretapping.

Walters said he did meet with Gray and asked him to "taper off" the money investigation, even though he and Helms could find no danger to any CIA clandestine operations in Mexico.

Later, the Marine general testified, he reversed himself and told Gray to have his agents investigate without any fear of affecting any CIA operations.

Walters' testimony closely paralleled what he told the Senate Watergate Committee in August, 1973.

Sirica's action in denying the defense motions came before the Watergate prosecutors began playing the series of 26 White House tapes they say is the most important part of their case.

Among them is the last tape made public by Richard M. Nixon before he resigned the presidency.

Burglar enters home; leaves 2 cans of beer

Someone forced open the door to the Gale Brazel apartment 407 Moore Ave., Thursday or Friday and deposited two cans of beer in her refrigerator.

Mrs. Brazel told police she could find nothing missing from the apartment.

However, other people were no so lucky, according to police reports released today.

Burglars took 18 one-pound packages of bacon from the Paul Yarber home, 333 Dixie St., between 7:45 p.m. Friday and 2 a.m. Saturday. Police said a window on the northwest side of the house was forced open and the bacon was taken from a freezer.

The amount of the loss was placed at $22.80.

A billfold containing $20 was taken from a purse belonging to Kathy Lewis, 234 N. Ranney St., between 9 and 10:50 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Lewis told police she and her husband were sitting in the Malco Twin Cinema watching a movie when the billfold was taken. She said she had placed her purse under the seat and, when she got up to leave, she found it open and the billfold gone.

The Holts were away from home at the time of the theft. The loss was placed at $20.

Burglars took an electric calculator from Gilles Feed & Seed Co., 420 W. North St., between 5 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday.

Police said the calculator was found abandoned near a house on Davis Boulevard before it was reported stolen.

Coal stockpile sufficient

The nationwide coal strike, scheduled to begin tonight, should have little effect on Sikeston Light and Water Co. customers if the strike is as short as predicted, perhaps no more than two weeks. Stockpiles of coal at the city steam plant, which generated electricity are now sufficient to last three and one-half to four months at current load levels.

Pensions get larger here

How much are Scott County residents now receiving from Washington each month in the form of social security checks?

How do these checks compare in size with those going to other sections of the country?

The latest official figures, released by the Social Security Administration, show that the pension payments on the local area are comparatively large.

They have been rising considerably during the last few years, due to the increases that have gone into effect.

Payments to Scott County beneficiaries, as of the beginning of this year, were at the annual rate of $1,442 per recipient, as against $1,098 in 1971.

The fact that the checks going to local residents are running bigger, on average, than those to many other parts of the country indicates that, over the years, their incomes were better.

More and more retired or disabled people and their dependents qualify each year to receive social security payments, due to revisions of the law that have reduced the age of retirement and brought in classes of workers that were ineligible formerly.

The current report shows that the number of persons in Scott County who were receiving pension payments in the past year was 6,005. In 1971 there were 5,439.

The increase in the number enrolled in social security has been accompanied by frequent hikes in the amounts paid out in benefits, as well as in the payroll taxes that go to pay for them.

The figures show that more than $8,664,000 is now entering the county annually via the social security route. In 1971, by way of contrast, it was $5,976,000.

The increase, 44.9 per cent, compares with a rise of 41.6 per cent in the United States and with 38.4 per cent in the State of Missouri.

With the changes that have been made, social security has expanded to huge proportions. It involves the collection and payout of over $51 billion annually, which is nearly a fourth of all other federal receipts.

Mines shutdown as strike nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal strike will begin just after midnight but most mines already were shut for the holiday. Union and industry negotiators are optimistic about reaching a new contract.

Another bargaining session was scheduled today. While both sides say they are making progress, a settlement appears unlikely before midweek at the earliest.

"I certainly feel we're not too many days away from a settlement," said Guy Farmer, the chief industry negotiator. "We're getting closer ... but I can't say when," said United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller.

Each day of delay will further prolong the strike, now expected to last at least two weeks. That's the estimated time required for miners to vote on any tentative pact.

The government says a walkout of any longer duration will begin to force production cutbacks in other industries and result in layoffs of thousands of workers.

A strike is unavoidable because of the UMW's "no contract, no work" tradition, and because ratification of any settlement would require about 10 days. Thus, the length of the walkout depends on the negotiators' ability to hammer out a new agreement that will win rank-and-file approval. The current contract expires at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

After furious last minute stockpiling Saturday, most coal mines were idle Sunday and are expected to remain so until the union's 120,000 members approve a new contract. Were the mines to work today — Veteran's Day — the companies would have to pay triple wages under holiday provisions of the current pact.

The negotiators met until 11 p.m. Sunday before recessing for the night, the latest they have worked in nearly a week.

As he emerged from the talks, Farmer said he thought it would be midweek before a settlement was worked out. Earlier, he had been hopeful of an agreement over this past weekend.

Several industries — notably railroads and steel companies — are expected to feel the initial effect of the strike.

The Norfolk & Western Railway, the nation's second largest coal hauler, has already announced plans for layoffs once present coal stockpiles at mines have been shipped. And, the Penn Central, the largest rail carrier, says it stands to lose $5 million a week during the strike.

Nine hurt in accidents

An Ellsinore couple was seriously injured and seven persons received minor injuries in six area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol announced today.

Louie Elmer MaGee, 66, and his wife Opal, 65, of Ellsinore were seriously injured in a one-car accident at 12:35 p.m. Sunday on Highway 67 four miles south of Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when MaGee's southbound car ran off the right side of the road and struck the Cane Creek bridge.

Both victims were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Buddy Leon Walker, 33, of Zalma was injured at 10 p.m. Friday on Route V six miles west of Advance when his pickup truck ran off the road, struck an embankment and overturned.

Walker received minor injuries and was taken to Poplar Bluff Hospital for treatment.

Sidney Keith Vancil, 52, of Holcomb was injured at 1:15 p.m. Saturday one mile west of Holcomb on Route B when he drove his northbound farm tractor into the path of a car driven by James Leon Burton, 29, of Holcomb.

Vancil was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

A Perryville boy and girl was injured in an accident at 12:15 a.m. Saturday on a gravel road two miles south of the McBride community in Perry County.

The accident occurred when a westbound truck driven by Bradley Riney, 16, of Perryville skidded and overturned.

Riney and a passenger, Norma Riney, 17, of Perryville, received minor injuries and was taken to Perry County Hospital for treatment.

Joyce Armour, 32, and her daughter, Joanne Gaskins, 13, of Wyatt received minor injuries at 11:30 a.m. Sunday on Highway 77 in Wyatt.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Armour's car ran off the road and struck a culvert.

Both Mrs. Armour and her daughter were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A Senath man was injured in an accident at 12:15 p.m. Sunday on Highway 25 one mile east of Arkansas state line near Cardwell in Dunklin County.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Larry Eddie Grooms, 32, ran off the road, jumped a drainage ditch and came to rest submerged in water.

Grooms received minor injuries and was taken to Methodist Community Hospital in Paragould, Ark., for treatment.

First value day set for Wednesday

The first Sikeston Value Day—a day on which merchants in the city will offer sales and specials is set for Wednesday.

The promotion is sponsored by the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce and the city's retail merchants.

Advertisements in a special section of Tuesday's edition of the Daily Standard and Wednesday's Shopper Topper will announce retail specials for Wednesday.

The majority of merchants in Sikeston are taking part in the Sikeston Value Day promotion, which will be presented the second Wednesday of each month.

Catron woman kills herself

CATRON — Mrs. Lillina Swiney, wife of the Rev. James Swiney, a Baptist minister, died about 7:30 a.m. today at the family home of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton.

Clayton said Mrs. Swiney, reportedly in her 40s, had been in ill health and depressed and had written a note stating she intended to take her life. He said death was caused by a .38-caliber bullet wound in the head.

The Rev. Mr . Swiney told officers he was in the bathroom shaving when he heard a shot fired by Mrs. Swiney who was in the bedroom.

The body is at Ponder Funeral Home in Lilbourn, where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Standard has its own Ann Landers in Risco

RISCO— Mrs. Patsy Ann Landers, a resident of the Risco community for the past 30 years, has been reporting for the Daily Standard since March of 1971.

She attended school at Risco, graduating as salutatorian of the class of 1955. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindell Stobaugh, also live in Risco.

Mrs. Landers is the wife of Don Landers and their joint specialty is rearing boys. Their four sons, Steve, 17, Ted, 15, Brent, 12, and Mike, six, all attend Risco RII Schools.

Mrs. Landers, sometimes privately referred to as "Ann," occasionally emulates her famous syndicated counterpart by offering free personal advice guaranteed to be worth its cost. She is a member of the Risco Rural Independent Club and enjoys original handcrafts and sewing, which she did profesionally for 15 years.

Patsy Ann Landers

She is active in community4-H work and believes that 4-H work aids the youth of today in becoming responsible citizens of tomorrow. As a clothing project leader, Mrs. Landers teaches sewing to several "substitute daughters."

The Landers family attends the Risco General Baptist Church where Mrs. Landers has taught in the children's department for more than 15 years.

To report news of the Risco area, phone Mrs. Landers at 396-5878 or contact her at home on Highway 62, two and one-half miles East of Risco.

Consumer group puts top goal label on no-fault

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Implementation of no-fault automobile insurance will be the top goal in 1975 of the state Department of Consumer Affairs, according to consumer affairs chief Alfred Sikes.

"A finding of fault should not be the concern in the majority of cases," Sikes said in a weekend speech. "To the degree it is necessary that fault be punished, our traffic laws and the insurance company's underwriting policies will suffice. The important thing is to get the claim settled in the fastest, most equitable way possible."

He said that if the state legislature, which has failed to pass bills for no-fault car insurance in the last three years, does not approve such a measure, federal standards probably would be imposed. Sikes claimed it would be better for a law to be passed that takes into consideration the specific driving habits of Missourians.

He noted that 21 states already have some form of no-fault insurance program and quoted a congressional report that the 10 Largest auto insurers were involved in nearly 360,000 personal injury lawsuits in 1970, some of them pending for more than eight years.

"The primary goal of this insurance reform is to reduce the payment of benefits time lag, assure fair payment of damages and reduce premiums," Sikes said.

Energy self-sufficiency is technologically possible. "But," warns Commissioner William O. Doub of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, "dealing with public fear about the safety of using nuclear power to produce electricity and public misunderstanding about the capabilities of alternate sources to meet our growing energy needs is quite nother matter. This particularly true when critics ... make almost hysterical appeals to these human emotions in their efforts to stop the use of nuclear power.

Commissioner Doub points out, as have many other knowledgeable people, the safety record of nuclear plants and emphasized that, "The most important job of the nuclear industry is, and has to be, safety." And so far as safety is concerned, the record of the nuclear industry is unsurpassed. With regard to the growing role nuclear energy will play in the overall energy picture, the Commissioner observed, "The nuclear power industry is already a major economic force with approximately $74 billion invested in or committed to nuclear power plants. Ine one year the operation of a single 100)megwatt nuclear power plant accounts for a saving of twelve million barrels of oil. As an industry, nuclear power has matured methodically over the past 20 years and with greater attention to public health and safety than any other industry ... Nuclear is an abundant, controllable energy source."

When energy self-sufficiency is discussed as a goal for the United States, the heart of the issue is not whether it can be accomplished, but whether the public will accept the blessings of a new technology and open the way to a higher state of civilization.

GOLF COURSES
TEE OFF

During the past decade, 3,900 new golf courses, including additions to existing facilities, have opened for play throughout the United States.

The number has ranged from over 500 in 19675 to 266 in 1972 — a yearly average of 390. Last year, 322 new courses were opened, led by Ohio, with 34; Michigan, 25; California, 23; Florida, 21; Texas, 17; Colorado, 16; Tennessee, 14; Iowa, 13, and North Carolina, 11.

As the nation's official clearinghouse on gold information, the National Gold Foundation has records on gold course growth since 1931. Each year, all new courses are added to NFG's computerized national inventory.

In 1931, there were 5,691 golf courses of all types in plan. In 1961, the total was 6,623, or a net increase of only about 16 per cent. But between 1961 and 1973, the inventory jumped to 10,870, an increase of 64 per cent in 12 years.

Between 1931 and 1973, 5,180 daily fee and municipal courses were opened, as opposed to only 377 new private courses. This tremendous growth in public courses, says the Urban Land Institute, clearly brings into focus the trend in golf course development in recent years: Golf no longer belongs to the few; it is everyman's game.

Another startling fact, says the Institute, is the great increase in golf courses associated with land development projects. In 1964, only 16.3 per cent of all golf courses built were part of land sales, new p lanned towns or resort and convention facilities. By 1973, the figure had soared to over 40 per cent.

UNARRESTABLE PETE

Big Pete was quite a guy. Everyone in town knew his big Ventrillix 16. In fact, it became his alter ego. He was a friendly individual, gave to all the drives, and each candidate for office could always count on a liberal donation from him. No one seemed to know where he got his money. But, then, as long as he passed it around as he did, no one cared to ask, either.

Now, parking was quite a problem for most people in Acirema, but not for Pete. If Big Pete wanted to go someplace and there was no place to park, he just parked anyway. Fireplugs, mailboxes, safety zones, made no difference. And if none of these was handy, the middle of the street had to do.

The City Fathers were quite strict on the parking problem. In fact, this and going faster than legal were used as a means of getting more cash any time City Hall needed a few extra goldoras. This, incidentally, was most frequent. Did Big Pete ever get a parking ticket; Don't be silly! What cop would give that big pink Ventrillix a ticket? You couldn't make it stick in the first place, and, besides, who wants to be shanghied to the sticks?

Now for the other drivers, there were spaces along the roadside with what were known as centino snatchers. You put in your centinos if and when you could find a vacant space. This permitted you to park on the streets your tax money had already paid for. The money was supposed to pay for building p arking spaces at sometime in the future, but the future never arrived. The City Fathers always seemed to find other uses for these centinos. In fact, it was rumored that when the till was rather empty, they sent out the flippers who let down the markers, and then your auto was ticketed. This meant a fine in goldoras rather then centinos.

When Big Pete basked in the status of being a lily, the meter flippers made things rather hard on the minor posies.

Colonel Sam S. Smith, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today reminded motorists that speed and darkness can be a deadly combination.

"Speed and darkness can certainly be a deadly combination," Smith stated. "By speed, I don't necessarily mean a high rate of speed. I mean a speed too fast for conditions. Dusk or darkness are conditions that call for traveling at a much lower speed than would be traveled on the same road in daylight."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that obviously a vehicle going at a low speed can stop in a shorter distance than one going father. This is a vital point in the night driving picture. In dusk or darkness a driver can't see as far ahead as he can in daylight. In fact, on a very dark road he can see only as far as the range of his headlights. He should, therefore, travel at a speed that will enable him to stop within the distance illuminated by his headlights.

"Alertness, of course, is very important at night," the Colonel continued. "Pedestrians and other motorists are difficult to see at night. An alert driver is more likely to see them in time to avoid an accident.

"Night driving calls for a 'tightening up' on the normal safe driving procedures a driver follows during the daylight hours," he concluded. "Drivers must adjust their speed and be extra alert for any traffic hazard that may be hidden in darkness."

An elderly gentleman was driving down the street in his antique car when a traffic officer signaled him to stop. Timidly, he pulled over to the curb. "It's all right," said the veteran officer, "relax. I just want to see what it feels like to put my foot on a running board again."

COMPANY OUTLINES PLAN FOR MINORITIES

The Quaker Oats Company has announced plans to provide 476 additional jobs worth $4 million in annual wages for non-whites by 1976.

The new jobs, which will range from executive, managerial and scientific positions to assembly line jobs, will raise its minorities payroll from $17 million to $21 million annually.

Quaker employs some 18,000 persons at 34 major plants, of whom approximately 2,000 are blacks and other minorities.

The Company, widely diversified in food, chemical, toy production and a restaurant chain, carries about $14 million in insurance with black companies and will add another $7 million by 1976.

The new plan includes some $2 million in construction that will go to black or non-white firms, and $702,000 annually to go to minority-run advertising firms.

case settled

A lawyer listened very attentively while the prospective client gave details of the case.

"You can't lose," said the lawyer finally. "If that case is presented properly, any jury in the land will deliver a verdict inside of ten minutes. Hand over a $100 retainer and I will handle the case for you."

"No, thanks," said the client. "I don't think I'll pursue the matter further: I was giving you the other fellow's side."

TOTAL ENVIRONMENT

As someone pointed out recently, there is more to the environment than the air we breathe, the water we drink and the trees and forests. Our environment also includes the house in which we live, the office, farm or factory in which we work to give us the where-withal with which to live and the commerce upon which a healthy economy depends. All of these things go to make up the total environment, which, according to the dictionary, is the aggregate of the external conditions and influences affecting the life of an organism.

So far as the environment is concerned, man must be considered as a mere organism. He requires the necessities and the amenities of his life that are part of his environment just as surely as air, water and forests. Pollution control must conform to our total environmental requirements. In short, we need air, water, forests -- and factories, homes and businesses.

He roamed the world in search of contentment.

But he was not content.

At last, he returned home, certain that he would never find contentment.

So he went to work, married, built a home, raised two children, and became active in a number of civic groups.

One day, he discovered that he had been content all the working years of his life.

DOUBLE HANG

A man was trying to hang a picture on the wall of his apartment. After much hammering on the wall his doorbell rang. There was his next door neighbor.

"Oh, I'm sorry if my hammering bothered you," the man apologized. "I was hanging a picture."

"That's all right," the neighbor replied. "I just wanted to know if it's okay for me to hang a picture on the other end of the nail."

PLOWSHARES BOW TO THE TEST TUBE

A growing number of farmers are abandoning the plow. No, they're not leaving the farm but are substituting chemical tools for the instrument used by men of the land since before written history.

It's called "no tillage" farming.

In a typical example, after harvesting his crop of wheat in the spring, instead of churning up tons of soil with a plow a farmer simply used a herbicide to kill off the weeds. A few days later, after the weeds and wheat stubble turn brown and begin to form a mulch, a special planter is used to cut through the mulch, dig pockets in the earth, drop in soybean seeds and cover them. At the same time, a fertilizer and a more selective herbicide which acts on above-ground weeds only are applied.

According to the quarterly Bulletin of Standard Oil of California, tillage — plowing, discing and harrowing — is the most expensive element of crop production, consuming tremendous amounts of labor, fuel and equipment. Soil losses caused by tillage, which annually exposes 250 billion tons of U.S. soil to erosion, has long worried conservationists and soil scientists.

In the mid-1960s, the U.Soil Conservation Servic began working with state universities, farm co-operatives and chemical company representatives in a number of field tests of no-tillage farming. The results were impressive.

By skipping the tedious and expensive process of plowing, farmers could plant earlier in the season without waiting for dry weather thereby gaining extra days of growing time. The results were higher yields per acres, lower equipment costs and de creased fuel consumption.

By planting in a mulch created by dead crops and weeds, wind-caused erosion was reduced, soil structure was maintained and — an added benefit of interest to environmentalists — pesticide residues were retained in the soil instead of being carried by run-off water into rivers and streams.

No-tillage farming will never entirely replace the plow. It cannot be used where farmers rely on furrow or row irrigation as in portions of California, or on highly compactible soils or in extremely cold, wet soils which require tillage to dry them out.

Nevertheless, it is estimated that in the United States virtually every acre of cropland east of the Rockies and south of the Great Lakes is plantable by no-till methods. Today, in the Midwest and South, hundreds of thousands of acres are being double-cropped without any tillage at all, saving farmers time and money while increasing their profits — and America's all-important capacity to produce food.

FREEDOM TO READ

This seems to be an age of Freedom for everyone to do this "thing." Among the Freedoms most important to all businesses is the Freedom to read (or not to read). The decision of what to read takes place during a scanning process. An ad designer can stop this scanning with an unusually creative treatment.

The best way to stop this scanning, Dr. Stuart Tolley, Bureau of Advertising, says is to offer simple and clear-cut creative treatments which permit the inherent appeals to be perceived with the reader's first screening of the ad.

"The first thing to be said about newspaper reading is that it is not forced. It is something people do as, when and because they want to. The reader can read as little or as much as she wants." Dr. Tolley pointed out.

He concluded that the material which is difficult for the eye to make sense of in the first few screenings eithr is rejected or returned to for more study, but if any comes through to the consciousness as interesting, it has a higher priority of being examined in more detail.

HALF NEW HOUSING IS IN SIX STATES

Florida and California led the list of states in new housing units authorized by permits in 1973, the U.S. Bureau of the Census has reported.

More than a quarter of all new housing units were concentrated in these two states out of a total 1,795,000 units authorized for the entire nation last year.

DO WE SEE — YET NOT SEE

The old saying "we're too close to the woods to see the trees". still applies.

Traveling the county and state highways and by-roads in Monroe County, we see miles and miles of beautiful flowers, even though to most of us they are "weeds".

Those from a distance marvel at the beautiful trees, the lush frasses, the green fields, the miles of black-eyed Susans, the Queen Anne's Lace and other wild flowering plants.

Yes, having lived our younger years on the farm, they are a nuisance, a pest and an unwanted weed to the farmer, but the fact remains those flowering plants are beautiful, and should be appreciated if we could forget the extra work they cause us.

Later, our travelarteries will be lined with Spanish Needle, goldenrod and other wild flowering plants.

...OW CHILE WAS SUBVERTED, THEN SAVED

More than a year has now passed since the Marxist regime of Salvador Allende in Chile was overthrown. Despite the incessant propaganda campaign against the new Chilean government, still more evidence emerges showing just how Chile was subverted to bring Allende to power and the enormous damage his government did.

During the three years preceding Allende's election, the supposedly anti- Marxist Christian Democrat government had built up a bureaucracy that was consuming fully one quarter of Chile's gross national product. Partisan pettiness and strife had caused most Chileans to lose confidence in their government, so the way was opened to the communists.

Allende in power was an obedient tool of Soviet Russia, for instance granting Russia special favors in a fishing treaty that was kept secret and which violated the Chilean constitution. He brought in Castroite Cubans, Maoist Chinese and leftist U. S. representatives to help consolidate his power. As Pedro Ivanez, formerly a Chilean Senator, said: "A score of foreign universities became sources of boastful, pseudo-academic judgments and misinformation about Allende's experiments, which received wide publicity by much of the world's press."

When Allende was finally overthrown, overwhelming evidence was available to have convicted him of both personal corruption and high treason. Mr. Ivanez is convinced that this is why he committed suicide rather than be captured alive.

But Chile seems to have learned some very fundamental lessons from its near disaster. There is no longer any significant support in that country for compromising with Marxism, but rather a determination to build a much sounder government that will not yield to the leftist pull that grips so many governments today. Inside Labor

by Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- Well, labor now has its "People's Congress," nee a "veto-proof Congress." And it was one of the most expensive political buys in history. In the words of one sophisticated international union chief: "Never did we spend so much for so many candidates, but whether this will pay off or not is another story. We could very well have a runaway Congress. Just look at all the McGovern types who rolled in on the tidal wave."

However, it was much more than money which labor spent. Rarely if ever in any land have there been such methodical planning, ingenuity, logistics, manpower, street, local, regional and "hinterland" committees, films, conferences, flying squads, millions of phone calls and millions of special letters poured into a nationwide campaign by any political force as did labor this year.

Thus labor, mostly the AFL-CIO COPE, Committee on Political Education, won everywhere, almost at will. So powerful was its high-geared campaign machinery, that it even threw the brakes on its anti-Republican juggernaut in fear of creating such absolute anti-GOP sentiment among its members that even its few Republican allies would be defeated. The brakes held.

In New York, labor re-elected Republican Sen. Jack Javits. He'd not have made it otherwise. In Pennsylvania, labor pushed through incumbent Sen. Richard Schweiker, "who in the last few years has been 'right' on every vote listed by AFL-CIO," according to a COPE memo. Labor campaigned successfully for Maryland's Republican Sen. Charles Mathias -- union chief George Meany's own Senator. Thus, it fought Republicans in such a fashion that the "anti-incumbent" sentiment did not wash away its few GOP allies.

And unioin men broke Ohio's Gov. John Gilligan because he intervened in labor's circles by maneuvering the ouster of his political opponent Frank King from the Ohio AFL-CIO ("State Fed") presidency. King is an intimate of Meany who long has disliked Gilligan.

It would take an encyclopedia-sized volume to describe the costly and imaginative COPE tactics.

So here's just one example: in mid-October, national COPE director Al Barkan dispatched letters to ALL national and international union presidents. In effect, he said: Dear Brother -- Enclosed is a sample letter you might want to send to all your members urging them to vote for our friends. I have a copy of the sample letter. In fact, several sample letters. An early one mentions Watergate. The last one ignores the scandal. But both warn of coming depression and unemployment if labor's allies are defeated and a veto-proof People's Congress didn't materialize.

Scores of international presidents then dispatched individual letters to all their members. These communications followed the Barkan sample closely. Of course, in each state and congressional district the specific names of endorsed candidates were inserted. Thus, Pennsylvania union members received a pro-Schweiker letter signed by their national president, and those in Colorado got a pro-Gary Hart missive.

Millions of these letters went into the mails from the AFL-CIO leadership alone. Leonard Woodcock's independent United Auto Workers union had its own mailings. So did the Teamsters.

And COPE, innovating its new special "Critical Path Method" of campaigning, included do-it-yourself prepared literature. One memo said: "The materials on these pages (in a four-page proof sheet -- VR) are suggested flyers for local unions and local central bodies (of which there are some 900--VR) to produce and distribute to their members. The only changes required would be addition of the candidate's name, where noted, and the office he seeks. Theses can be taken intact to a printer, making unnecessary any composition costs. In some instances, perhaps the flyers can be localized (by adding language briefly describing certain issues). Where this is possible, it will strengthen the impact of the material." Sort of prefabrictated politics!

It was a smashing offensive. It's thrust was -- stop the "runaway inflation." Last Monday, Election Eve, Meany and Barkan expected to pick up 25 House seats. Tuesday night they were startled by the inpouring into the House of 45 new labor allies.

As Meany has said, labor's political machine is the nation's best. I believe it is, in all but name, a third major political party. It is the only steadily viable party. It did not sink as did the Republiccans in the 1964 election after which GOP national chairman Ray Bliss said: "We'll have to look in an insane asylum for someone to run in 1968." COPE didn't founder after Dick Nixon's '68 victory though it blasted him right up to the polls' closing that year. Nor did COPE sink in the Nixon anti-Democratic holocaust of '72.

These labor politicos do their homework, oil their machinery and computers, allocated skilled manpower and scientific equipment the year round. They never stop. In British terms, labor's party has a parliamentary majority. A heavy one.

It's a veto-proof Congress all right, but will success spoil it? Will it take discipline? Or will it run away and dump its rider in a wild stampede in a new-fashioned McGovern-type rodeo?

U.S. Chopper Fleet can't Handle Arab Oil Takeover

WASHINGTON--In an earlier report, we told of grim, hushed talk in the Washington policy councils about possible military action to break the oil squeeze and save the West from economic ruin.

This could take the form, we reported, of a Marine assault upon the oil fields of Libya. According to one estimate, two Marine divisions could seize and hold these rich fields.

But we have now learned that the helicopter carrier fleet, which would be needed to spearhead such an assault, is in sad fighting condition. The seven multimillion-dollar carriers are literally falling apart. Their hulls are rusting through, helicopter facilities unsafe, living quarters fouled with sewage, galleys full of roaches and blood banks rotting.

A secret series of surveys now being conducted by the highest Navy inspector, Rear Adm. John Bulkeley, indicates the decrepit helicopter carrier fleet may be unmatched since Abraham's Lincoln's broken-down Civil War fleet.

Bulkeley's urgent reports are going to only 22 admirals, plus Marine Commandant R.E. Cushman. But a Navy seadog, alarmed over the condition of the fleet, arranged to deliver the first secret inspection report to us at an out-of-state rendezvous. The findings have been confirmed by our own investigation.

Each carrier can deliver 2,000 airborne Marine assault troops with full equipment and artillery swiftly to any trouble spot in the world. These leathernecks are supposed to be our modern minutemen, ready to assault an enemy stronghold, guard a canal or rescue American nationals caught in a flash revolution.

The papers in our possession deal only with the USS Okinawa, but high Navy sources have confided that the same conditions exist on all seven helicopter carriers.

The Bulkeley inspection team checked out the Okinawa under sea-going conditions during the week of October 7. The ship, reported the admiral, has become so "degraded" that "immediate attention" is vital.

The carrier's radar is no longer able to scan the skies properly. Its electronic equipment cannot tell whether an approaching plane is friend or foe. Its weapons test equipment is "uncalibrated and inoperative."

The "heat stress, airborne noise and sanitation conditions are totally unacceptable, and must also receive priority," the report adds. Most of the ship's boiler casings sizzle at "200 to 300 degress F." making them dangerous to work near.

"There are cockroach infestations, unclean conditions in the food service areas and unsatisfactory procedures for the handling of potable water," continues the complaints.

The sewage system has "no mechanical seals (and), as a result, raw sewage will leak out to the decks or the pump rooms where it can be tracked through the ship." This creates "an evironment in which harmful bacteria could..disable the crew."

In case of an emergency, it is vital to get the helicopters on deck rapidly. Yet neither aircraft elevator operates "in the automatic mode and apparently have not for a long time."

And when the Marines' jeeps and other vehicles aboard the carrier are being repaired, there is no proper ventilation system to remove the carbon monoxide if the motors is are running.

Neither the air compressors nor airconditioning work well, and the propulsion system needed to keep the ship going is rusting. A last straw: Even the clapper in the ship's bell is missing.

Footnote: We will give more details of the Bulkeley report and the Navy's reply in a future column.

Hansson voluntarily submits all his fish to federal inspection, unlike many distributors who send out their products unchecked for either quality or safety.

St. Louis killings baffle police

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The puzzling, gangland-style killings of a druggist and his teen-age clerk here Sunday have left police baffled.

Bernard Grossman, 45, operator of the Hampton Plaza Pharmacy in south St. Louis, and Susan Psaris, 18, were found shot to death early Sunday on a south St. Louis County high school athletic field, just a few hours after they were reported missing from the drug store.

There was little money and no narcotics missing from the store and Grossman's body contained $32, said police, who were admittedly without a motive for the slayings.

"We can't tell you much," said St. Louis Homicide Detective Herbert Riley. "We don't understand it."

Grossman, of suburban Creve Coeur, and Miss Psaris, of St. Louis, were each shot once in the back of the head with a small caliber weapon, police said.

Both were discovered by a morning jogger lying face down near a cinder track circling the Affton High School football field.

They had vanished from Grossman's drug store Saturday night and were reported missing after customers found the store empty.

It was the second such disappearance in St. Louis within 14 days.

Fred Gent, 21, and Todd Friedman, 22, vanished Oct. 28 from a Radio Shack store in Florissant and are still missing.

Police said the two incidents appeared to be unrelated but were still investigating some similarities. A $10,000 reward has been offered for information leading to discovery of Gent and Friedman, but police have few leads.

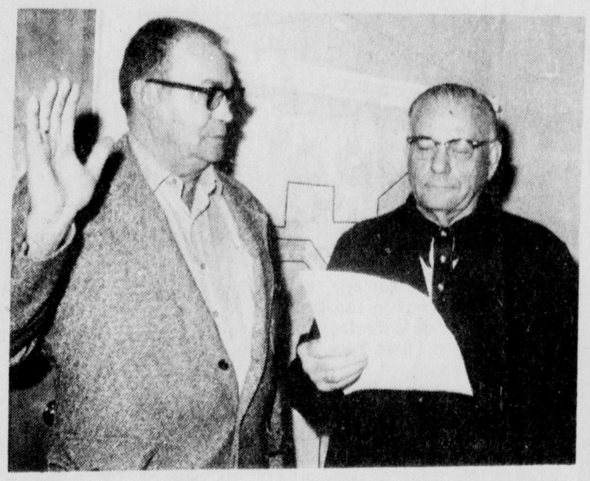

Authorities said Grossman and Miss Psaris were apparently shot Saturday night.

A woman living near the high school told police she heard what appeared to be two gunshots about 9 p.m. Saturday, but thought they were connected with another incident police were already investigating.

A jogger using the track about that time saw what he thought were two mannequinns lying alongside the track, but did not report the incident until Sunday, police said.

No signs of violence were found at the store. About $40 was missing, but $489 in cash and checks were found in the cash drawer, leading police to discount robbery as a motive.

However, authorities were investigating five robberies that occurred at the pharmacy during the last two years for possible clues to the shootings.

Councilman takes oath

Officials estimate 60,000 fish killed

MALDEN, Mo. (AP)—State officials have estimated the value of nearly 60,000 fish killed in an incident in southeast Missouri at about $3,300.

Conservation Department biologists continued to investigate the kill today, claiming its cause remained unknown.

Officials said a New Madrid County farmer first reported the kill Wednesday. They said it affected 10 miles of drainage ditch and stream below the Malden Sewage Treatment Plant.

About 53,000 minnows along with bullheads, carp, sunfish and pickerel were killed, officials said.

October funds

The Scott County Family Service Office, 312 E. Center St., disbursed funds totaling $151,479 in October, with the greatest part being paid to the aid to dependent children program.

Breman L. Montgomery, county director, reported state supplemental payments of $21,587 were paid to 692 persons. These persons were transferred to the new federal supplemental security income payroll and also remained eligible for a supplemental payment from the state. These received payments under the new SSI program and the state supplemental program.

A total of 246 persons who received state supplemental payments only in the amount of $10,303. This group previously received old age assistance, permanent and total disability, or aid to the blind program and were not eligible for the new SSI program.

There were 912 families with 2,162 children who received a total of $106,374 in the aid to dependent children category, averaging $116.64 per family.

General relief funds of $9,269 went to 138 families consisting of 155 persons, with a family check averaging $67.17 per family.

Twenty-one persons received a total of $3,836 in nursing care supplement payments during October.

One person received a $110 blind pension.

Child welfare services were provvided for 171 children, 228 children were given preventive services and $3,215 was expended from the County Court payroll for aid to dependent children foster care for 35 children in foster care.

Thirty adults received services during October, 28 of whom were given protective services and two of whom were given preventive services.

Minor damage was reported.

Morris hospitalized

KANSAS CITY (AP) — William S. Morris, former Missouri lieutenant governor, was in intensive care at St. Luke's Hospital here Sunday night.

Morris, 55, lieutenant governor in the administration of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, entered the hospital Saturday night with chest pains. A hospital spokesman said Sunday night there had been "no definite prognosis."

Morris, who has a private law practice here, lost the Democratic primary for governor in 1972 to Edward Dowd of St. Louis.

19 injuries treated

Nineteen accident patients were treated and released over the weekend in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Five treated Friday were: Rocky P. Copeland, 18, Morehouse, injured in car accident; Richard Patrick, 17, East Prairie, cut right hand on knife; Tommy Lane, 70, Painton, injured left little finger at work; Charles McKinney, 37, Sikeston, cut left ring and index fingers at work and Daniel Byrd, 40, East Prairie, bruised right knee at work.

Thiefs hits farm near Bloomfield

Firemen called to false alarms

Firemen were called to two false alarms early Sunday morning, according to Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer.

Linnemeyer said the calls were made about 1:15 a.m., apparently by the same woman. She told firemen the fires were at 316 Sunset Drive and 214 Dixie St.

In fact, until the automobile came along kerosene was the major product of oil refineries, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Because it burned slowly, it was used to light lamps, heat homes and cook food. Gasoline, too, was a refinery by-product. Because it exploded when ignited, it was often dumped into rivers and creeks for disposal.

Miss Tucker, Johnson wed

Marilyn Sue Tucker and Terry Bryan Johnson were united in marriage at 7 p.m. Oct. 26 at Shady Acres Church of Christ.

Wesley Cowan of Essex officiated at the cereomony, and Barbara Smith was in charge of music. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Tucker of Gray Ridge, and the goom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas L. Davenport of Memphis, Tenn.

The parents' pews were decorated with miniature matching arrangements in fall colors and were marked with yellow ribbons.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal-length gown of candlelight chiffon and imported Chantilly lace, designed by William Cahill. The princess silhouette was fashioned with a lace bodice, high neck, English net yoke and full bishop sleeves with lace cuffs. The flowing skirt formed a full, lace-bordered, chapel-length train in the back.

Tiny seed pearls covered a colonial cap to which was secured a veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white snowdrift palms and yellow roses mixed with white baby's breath and bonsai ferns.

Matron of honor was Sondra Talkington of Gallatin, Tenn. sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Melanie Bain and Susan Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., sister-in-law of the groom. The attendants wore floor-length gowns of mint green polyester jersey.

Kira Talkington of Gallatin, Tenn., niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed like the attendants.

Darryl Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Danny Talkington of Gallatin, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert B. Fisher of Memphis.

Jean Shepard of Memphis attended the guestbook.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship room.

Mrs. Ivan Pulling, Mrs. Robert Mouser, Mrs. Phillip Short and Mrs. Robert Isbell, aunt of the bride, were servers.

A white embossed satin cloth overlaid with yellow tulle was caught up with yellow ribbon and net. Fall flowers were used to decorate the top of the wedding cake, and silver serving accessories were placed on each end of the table.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Fisher, Barbara Jackson, Lynn L. Bar, Kathy Shepard, Linda Shepard, Jean Shepard, Mrs. Michael Pera, Lewis R. Harris Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gerald R. Rossi, Michael Rossi, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Adams Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Adams and Warren Adams of Memphis, Tenn.; Sheila Gaylord of St. Louis; and Linda Shipman and Phyllis Mitchell of St. Charles.

The new Mrs. Johnson is a graduate of Richland High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau. She is presently employed as sales assistant at E.H. Crump and Co. in Memphis. Johnson is a graduage of Memphis State University and is an account executive at E.H. Crump and Co. The couple lives in Memphis.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Bryan Johnson

Ann Landers

Dog's bite often causes psycholoigical damage

Dear Ann Landers: Our nephew, seven years old, was bitten by a dog he tried to pet. The child spent the first six years of his life on a farm and loves animals. The bite was not serious, but the incident caused such emotional trauma that now the child goes into a panic whenever he sees a dog, even a tiny poodle on the lap of an older woman.

Please advise parents on how to teach their children to protect themselves against strange dogs. Of course, the real solution would be an ironclad leash law in every city -- but it's like wishing for the moon. Thanks, Ann. — Concerned Citizen

Dear C. C.: I checked with the Chicago Health Dept. and learned that most dog bite victims are boys between five and nine years of age. And, I was told the psychological damage is usually worse than the bite.

Most dogs bite because they feel threatened or have been provoked. So -- parents should teach their children, (1) stay away from strange dogs, (2) don't talk to them or try to pet them, and (3) never tease a dog that is fenced in or tied up. Some dogs, if irritated, can jump a fence or break loose from a rope. It is unwise to wave a stick (or any object that might be perceived as a weapon) in a dog's face.

Children should be told : " 'If a strange dog growls at you or appears to be ready to attack, never run or scream. Stand still, with your arms at the side and speak softly to the animal. If the dog attacks, cover your face with arms crossed. If the dog starts to leap, get down on the ground, belly down, and cover your head with your arms.

Every dog bite, no matter how trivial, should be reported to the police or the health department. And one last thing -- if there is no leash law in your city, lobby for one.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 17 and have a sister who is 15. Recently I read my sister's diary. I realize it was wrong, but I did it anyway.

Now I know that she and her boyfriend are involved in some very heavy pettting. What's even worse, her boyfriend does not believe in God. Do you think I should tell my mother or keep quiet? I know it would break Mom's heart if she knew what was going on. Please advise me. -- Very Much Undecided

Dear Much: M.Y.O.B. You had no business snooping. Don't compound the wrongdoing by finking on your sister. It will not change her behavior nor will it help her boyfriend believe in God, but it will most assuredly destroy your sister's belief in YOU.

Dear Ann Landers: I remember watching my mother and grandmother go through menopause -- the hot flashes and unbearable discomfort. I always thought when it hit me I'd know, but now I'm not sure.

I am 42 and have these sudden rushes of heat waves that come on unexpectedly. I perspire as if I were in a steam bath. Sometimes they last for 20 minutes.

I can't sleep a whole night through. In the morning I'm soaking wet I mentioned this to a friend and she said I was too young for menopause. It didn't hit her till she was 52. When I phoned our family doctor he said, "Learn to live with it." Any advice? -- Miserable

Dear M.: Make an appointment with another doctor -- this time a gynecologist. Menopause hits women at different times. There's no set age. And you don't have to "learn to live with it" either. Medication can give you relief. And when you GET releif, phone your old family doctror and tell him about it. He needs to go back to medical school for a refresher course.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband crawled out from under the bathroom sink, rose to his feet, summoned the entire family about him and said, "I suppose you all wonder why I have gathered you here today."

We all nodded soberly.

"I have just cleaned out the trap under this washbowl and I would like to inventory the items I have removed: 14 toothpaste caps, one shampoo cap, a blue balloon, a plastic naval officer, a wine bottler cork, three rubber bands, a dime, and a class ring from a girl's school in Peoria."

"If it's silver, the dime is mine," said my son.

"Don't interrupt ... a Barbie bra, a pencil stub, a tooth, possibly human, a luggage key, 17 rusted bobby pins and 85 pounds of hair. What are we going to do about it?"

"Are you suggesting a garage sale?" I ventured.

"I am not suggesting a garage sale," he said between clenched teeth, "I am suggesting that this family stop littering the plumbing. Do you know what really aggravates me??"

"I know," said a son raising his hand. "The night we left on 32 lights and no one was home."

"No , it was my feet hanging out the window last summer on our vacation.,,

"You are all wrong," I said. "It's standing in front of an open refrigerator door like you're waiting for change."

"This is not a game show," said my husband evenly. "This is serious. We are the only family in the block who has a live-in plumber who retired at age 23 to live out the rest of his life in Hilton Head. A week has not gone by that something in this bathroom has not bubbled, hissed, dripped, trickled, or run over. I don't mind admitting I'm not the world's greatest plumber...why are you snickering?"

"I do the best I can living with four people who are not ready yet for indoor plumbing. Now, here is the plan. In the future, if you have hair falling out, either place it in the nearest receptacle or braid it back into your original hair. Replace all caps on their original bottles or tubes and report any suspicious gurgling noises you hear immediately."

"By the way, Dad," said our son, "here's a President Ford WIN button that was stopping up the drain in the shower. Why were you wearing a WIN button in the shower?"

I could hardly wait for the answer as my next question was, "Where?"

Bond to recommend funding

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP-Gov. Christopher S. Bond has agreed to recommend full funding for the commission on the Status of Women in his upcoming budget request to the state legislature, Geoffrey McCarron said today.

McCarron, head of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, said Bond has agreed that the commission, which received no money for this fiscal year, should continue because of the changing role of women not only in the labor force but in the home and as consumers."

The budget request will total slightly more than $54,000.

Betty Adams, chairman of the commission, pointed out that lack of funding has hampered the commission.

Noting that its funding has dropped from $10,000 two years ago to nothing this year, she said the reduction was due to the commission's stands on the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion. The commission has supported ERA and abortion as an individual decision.

"We are being penalized for the positions we have taken on these two controversial issues," she commented.

Collegiate sports changing

EDITORS NOTE: A revolution is brewing in college athletics. The women have joined up, and there's nothing the men can do about it. The government has stepped in with a law called Title IX, and to hear some tell it, the day of big-time college athletics is either over or on the way out. Here is the first of a five-part series on the role of women, who are going from "bake sales to half the pie."

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to college athletics, women have always been good sports.

The men had their training tables; the women had their bake sales. The men traveled in jumbo jets; the women drove Volkswagen buses. The men became campus heroes on Saturday; the women cheered them on.

The history of collegiate sports reflects that men have been handed their programs, facilities and equipment on silver platters. The women polished them.

But those days appear just about over because of a law which says:

"No person in the United States shall be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance..."

The law is Title IX of the 1972 Education Act, and it means that any high school or college receiving any federal funding for any reason risks losing that money if it does not provide equal athletic opportunity for women.

To some, that means major universities will have to spend millions they don't have on women's athletics; to others, it means an end to big-time college athletics. For all, it will mean some new emphasis on women's athletics, and, very possibly, less money for men.

Title IX already has meant new athletic scholarships and new money for women's sports at the collegiate level. When all the changesoccur, the face of collegiate sports may be changed forever.

What is abundantly clear in Title IX is that universities must provide teams, coaches, facilities and some scholarship aid to women who wish to participate in competitive sports. Whether the women have the same athletic skills as the men is irrelevant; equal opportunity must be provided.

It would seem that in complying with Title IX colleges have three choices: (1) Pay for the increased women's programs by cutting funds in other areas of the university, (2) Pay for them by cutting spending for men's athletics, or (3) Find more money somewhere.

Whatever happens, new money for women won't always be provided willingly.

"The government has no business getting into the athletic business," says Big Sky Athletic Commissioner John Roning, who claims Title IX "will be a serious threat to intercollegiate athletics through diversion of funds to women's programs."

The same subject drew a slightly different reaction from Katherine Ley, president of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. She said Title IX "does more for women than anything since women got the right to vote."

So why can't we switch on the tube this Saturday, settle back into an easy chair and watch women knock each others' brains out?

Well, besides the pervasive reason that these things take time, money and inclination, it's because Congress passes laws and the executive branch enforces them.

One bit of testimony to the obstacles the women's sports movement faces is that Title IX has been on the books since 1972—unenforced—while women have remained on the sidelines—uninvolved.

"I'm surprised we haven't been taken to court for foot-dragging," says one knowledgeable insider at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the federal agency charged with writing the enforcement regulations for Title IX.

HEW finally proposed last June a series of tentative enforcement regulations that were designed to gauge the public reaction to Title IX. Interested parties had until Oct. 15 to comment.

Now that HEW has those comments, it will study them and write a series of final regulations. They will be completed early next year, and then go to President Ford for his signature. If he signs it, Title IX, which was passed two years ago, will at last become a law that the government can force colleges to comply with.

Since almost every college receives federal money, and since few can do without those dollars, very few will have any choice but to comply with Title IX. A violation in any program on campus conceivably could mean a loss of all federal funds for the school.

Many colleges across the country aren't waiting for the final regulations. Their budgets for women's sports already are soaring.

Gwen Gregory, an HEW lawfor writing the preliminary regulations and now is working on the final ones, went on a 12-city tour this summer to try and allay doom sayers.

Miss Gregory, an official in HEW's civil rights division, says the comments to the preliminary regulations have been voluminous and chock full of misunderstandings. She says the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which reportedly has spent $300,000 in its anti-Title IX lobbying effort, is a leader in both areas.

What's the law?

The case of the crap-shooting loser

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

When the dominoes began to gallop, the odds were that Rocky's money was riding on them. From 1961 through 1969, he made frequent trips to Las Vegas and consistently lost large sums of money at the dice tables. Nevertheless, like a punch-drunk fighter, he kept going back.

Each time he deducted the cost of the trip as a business expense. When the Internal Revenue Service finally caught up with him, Rocky's deductions for the trips were disallowed.

"What d'ya mean you won't allow them?" protested Rocky. "The tax law says that expenses incurred 'for production of income' are deductible. And while the odds may have been against me, the only reason I went to Las Vegas was to make money."

"You've got to be kidding," was the answer. "You're a loser! Not even an adding machine could get you even. Consequently, the cost of those trips weren't for the production of income, they were for your own sadistic pleasure."

The dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Rocky to deduct the cost of the trips from his taxes?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that Rocky's experience at the crap table bore eloquent testimony to the fact that the odds were against him making a profit shooting dice. What's more, the judge noted, with Rocky's consistent loss record, it is difficult to believe that even Rocky, himself, realistically expected to turn a profit out of his gambling.

There fore, concluded the judge, the cost of his trips to Las Vegas were not incurred "for production of profit" so as to be deductible.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Low-sugar diet problems

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last December I had a three-hour tolerance test for diabetes. It was 303, 281 and 214. The doctor told me to lose weight. I weighed around 140 and went on a sugar-free and low carbohydrate diet and lost about 20 pounds. My blood last February was 139 and in June it was only 100.

Now my trouble is I've always been one who has a problem with constipation. I used to eat a lot of bran flakes and prunes, lots of fruit and juices. I had to eliminate these on the diet. So, now I really have a problem. About twice a week I have to take something. I get a lot of gas pains, gas that just seems to go around and around and I can't seem to get rid of it. What can I take so I can have a better bowel movement without taking fruit and bran? The doctor says I have to stay off sweets.

I also have high blood pressure. The last reading was 138 over 84. I have been taking medicine for this. But lately, I've had a very slow pulse. I wonder if it is because of the blood pressure medicine? When I take it the pulse is between 55 and 60. I'm 58 years old.

DEAR READER — Most diets that eliminate carbohydrates cause the kind of problem you are experiencing. After all, the natural bulk in our diet is dependent upon such good natural foods as cereals, vegetables and fruit. These are important to normal bowel function. Some authorities think their absence leads to many colon problems, including an increased likelihood of having cancer of the colon.

So, you have a special problem. I would wonder if your doctor would not be willing to try letting you include some cereal and unsweetened fruit and vegetables in your diet as long as you didn't gain your weight back? With your blood glucose sugar level at 100 you are in very good control and he has accomplished a lot for you.

If you can't do that, I would suggest you take a bulk expander to replace your natural food bulk. These should be agar-agar or psyllium seed products. A good one that you can get is Metamucil. These are not chemical laxatives, which I disapprove of because they can be harmful to your bowel function. Your colon will not function normally until you have a reasonable amount of bulk in your diet or replace diet bulk with a bulk expander.

About the blood pressure. The medicine is responsible for helping to lower your pressure to the levels you now have. Those levels are all right. If you stopped your medicine, it might go back up, although some people continue to have lower pressure after they have lost weight. The slow pulse rate can also be from the medicine. However, the rates you describe are all right. I have seen many healthy, young athletes with slow heart rates, even slower than yours.

If you still have any excess fat you can identify on your body, you should go ahead and lose it. After that, perhaps your diet and medicine program can be changed toward normal.

World News in Brief

TEL AVIV (AP) — Tel Aviv slum dwellers rioted Sunday to protest the government's new austerity program, but Premier Yitzhak Rabin warned more severe measures would come soon. To halt the drain on foreign currency reserves, Rabin's government devalued the pound 43 per cent, froze wages, and hiked food, gasoline and electricity prices, banned imports of luxury items for six months, and levied new taxes.

MOSCOW (AP) — Leading Jewish activists told Sen. James Buckley on Sunday that the Kremlin has increased its harassment of Jewish dissidents since the announcement in Washington of an agreement to let more Jews emigrate from the Soviet Union. The Conservative-Republican from New York met for 1½ hours at the home of Jewish scientist Alexander Lerner with 16 of Moscow's most active Jewish leaders, most of them denied permission to leave the country.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — The president of the International Chess Federation said Sunday that Bobby Fischer's chess crown will go to a Russian if the dispute between the American and the federation isn't settled by April 1. Dr. Max Euwe said in an interview he will strip Fischer of his title unless he agrees to defend it under the scoring rules set by the federation.

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Saudi Arabia, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates cut their oil prices by 3½ per cent Sunday, but they also hiked taxes and royalties charged foreign oil companies by 17 per cent, making it unlikely that consumers will get any reduction. Iran, Kuwait and Iraq refused to go along with the move.

SWANTON, Vt. (AP) — Because of America's worsening economic picture, the U.S. Border Patrol says fewer aliens are trying to illegally slip over the border from Canada to New England.

"I think the reason it (illegal immigration) is down is employment is not as good in the United States as last year ... employment is tighter," explained John K. Lovejoy, chief patrol agent along the international border from the Franklin-Clinton County line in New York through Oxford County, Maine.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The United States will consume all its known energy resources within 60 years, says a Yale physicist.

Prof. Arvid Herzenberg said in an interview that at today's consumption rate, and without the discovery of new resources, U.S. oil supplies will be depleted by 1988, gas by 1989, coal by 2032.

But 'the important thing is that one is taking quite a gamble on these working out," he said.

Cook fined $15

PORTAGEVILLE-- Billy Wayne Cook was levied a $15 fine Saturday for driving without a license by Police Judge Taylor Noles Sr.

A .38-caliber pistol and $37 in pennies were reported stolen from Wimpy's Liquor Store, 815 W. Malone Ave., between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 8 15 a.m. Friday.

Police said entry was apparently gained by cutting a nut and bolt head from a locking bar over the back entrance.

Tools, dogs are stolen

BENTON-- A box of tools was stolen at McMullin Gin Co., and two dogs were taken from homes in Morley, over the weekend according to Scott County Sheriff John Dennis.

The box of tools was discovered missing about 9:55 a.m. Saturday at the gin. Their value was not determined, Dennis said. The theft occured Friday night or Saturday morning.

Two beagles were taken from homes four blocks apart sometime Friday night in Morley, Dennis said.

The beagles were chained in the yards of the Rev. Robert Carrow and Blake Johnson. In both cases the chains were cut, Dennis said.

The dogs were valued at $75 to $80 each.

Michigan state upsets O state

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When is a touchdown not a touchdown? When the play starts after the final gun ... and when it's an illegal play, anyway.

Both those things happened to No. 1-ranked Ohio State Saturday, although in the confusion over whether or not time had expired before Ohio State's Brian Baschnagel picked up a loose ball and darted into the end zone one important fact was somewhat overlooked — the play would been nullified by an illegal procedure penalty and would not have been rerun since a game can end on an infraction by the offensive team.

"It was the ruling of the back judge and the field judge that time had expired before the last play," Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said Sunday night in the wake of Michigan State's controversial 16-13 triumph over Ohio State.

"But the referee also told me they were not set for a full second before the snap. The field judge was ready to throw the flag, but he didn't because the game was over."

And that seemed to put a damper on Coach Woody Hayes' claim that "they (the players) say there were still two seconds on the clock when the ball was snapped. The ball was fumbled by the quarterback on the exchange, Baschnagel picked it up and took it into the end zone."

That was the biggest upset on one the looniest days in an already ridiculous college football season, a day that left many of the bowl committees looking like candidates for the funny farm, although Ohio State's closest challengers made their moves to supplant the Buckeyes in the ratings.

Oklahoma, runner-up to Ohio State in The Associated Press poll, battered Missouri 37-0; third-ranked and Orange Bowl-bound Alabama destroyed Louisiana State 30-0 and No. 4 Michigan shaded Illinois 14-6 and took a one-game lead over Ohio State in the Big Ten's Rose Bowl race. After that, though, the roof fell in:

Southern Methodist 18, fifth-ranked Texas A&M 14; Georgia 17, sixth-ranked Sugar Bowl-bound Florida 16; North Carolina State 12, seventh-ranked Cotton Bowl-bound Penn State 7; Baylor 34, 12th-ranked Texas 24; Brigham Young 21, 16th-ranked Arizona State 18; Kentucky 38, Peach Bowl-bound Vanderbilt 12; Tenth-ranked Auburn 24, Sun Bowl-bound Mississippi State 20, and Clemson 54, Sun Bowl-bound North Carolina 32.

Eighth-ranked Notre Dame, headed for the Orange Bowl and a rematch with Alabama, and No. 15 Houston, which will oppose N.C. State in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, had the weekend off while ninth-ranked Nebraska, Florida's Sugar Bowl foe, disposed of Iowa State 23-13 and No. 11 Southern California moved into the Pacific-8 Conference lead and the Rose Bowl driver's seat by trouncing Stanford 34-10.

Miami of Ohio, rated No. 13 and reportedly set for the Tangerine Bowl, wrapped up its second consecutive Mid-American Conference crown by edging Kent State 19-17. Maryland, No. 14 and headed for the Liberty Bowl, crushed Villanova 41-0 and Fiesta Bowl-bound Oklahoma State, ranked No. 17, trimmed Kansas State 29-5.

Rounding out The Second Ten, No. 18 California walloped Washington 52-26; Pitt, tied for 19th with Texas Tech, whipped Temple 35-24 and Tech blanked Texas Christian 28-0. Tech has accepted a bid to the Peach Bowl ... on the condition it doesn't somehow back into the Southwest Conference title and Cottn Bowl berth that nobody seems to want.

Trailing 13-3 in the fourth quarter, Michigan State battled back to overtake Ohio State on a 44-yard pass from Charley Baggett to Mike Jones and Levi Jackson's 88-yard run with just over three minutes left.

Oklahoma's Jim Littrell romped for 155 yards, Joe Washington added 143 and a touchdown and Grant Burget tallied twice as the Sooners rushed for 498 yards against Missouri.

Meanwhile, Alabama used the strong running of Willie Shelby and a 29-yard fumble return by Ricky Davis to post its 41st triumph in the last 42 regular-season games and hand LSU its worst setback since 1963 and its worst shutout defeat in 13 sasons under Coach Charlie McClendon.

Gordon Bell ran eight yards for one score and Dennis Franklin smashed over from a yard out to give Michigan a 140 first-half lead and the Wolverines held on to defeat Illinois.

The Southwest Conference chase remained jumbled when SMU upset frontrunning Texas A&M. Oscar Roan picked up a teammate's fumble and raced 14 yards for one touchdown, Ricky Wesson darted 20 yards for another and Louie Kelcher and Steve Morton led an inspired defense.

Baylor moved into second place, one-half game behind the Aggies, by defeating Texas' six-in-a-row champs for the first time since 1956 as Neal Jeffrey threw two touchdown passes and ran for one score.

Georgia's defeat of Florida lifted the Bulldogs into second place in the Southeastern Conference, one game behind Alabama.

Fullback Stan Fritts scored one touchdown and passed 22 yards to Pat Hovance for another as N.C. State kayoed Penn State. Freshman Monte Anthony ran for two scores and led Nebraska past Iowa State. And Secdrick McIntyre's 54-yard run in the third period — his second touchdown — enabled Auburn to withstand two late Mississippi State scores.

Anthony Davis scored twice and passed for a third TD as Southern Cal drubbed Stanford and took a one-game lead in the Pac-8. Dave Draudt's 39-yard field goal with 10 seconds left lifted Miami over Kent State.

Tim Wilson's two touchdowns paced Maryland past Villanova and Gary Sheide's two scoring passes enabled BYU to edge Arizona State and maintain its half-game lead over Arizona in the Western Athletic Conference.

Bob Shephard's 83-yard interception return highlighted Oklahoma State's rout of Kansas State. Steve Bartkowski fired touchdown passes of 56 and 43 yards and Howard Strickland scored three times — once on a 68-yard run — in California's romp over Washington.

Freshman Elliott Walker, subbing for injured All-American Tony Dorsett, rushed for 169 yards and four touchdowns in leading Pitt over Temple. And sub quarterback Don Roberts directed four scoring drives as Texas Tech trounced Texas Christian.

Hawks claim title

By BILL HARRISON

BELL CITY — Randy Hagar and David Felter paced the Kelly Hawks to the championship of the Bell City B team tournament Here Saturday night. The Hawks defeated the host Cubs, 62-53.

The Hawks were seeded number one in the tournament and Bell City had been seeded third at the beginning of the week long event.

Coach Ed Street employed a man to man press defense against the Cubs and coach Ronnie Stone's team had trouble getting the ball down the court and the defense caused the Cubs to force most of their shots.

The Cubs used a man to man press also and both teams looked a little tired before the game came to an end.

The Hawks used their height, 6-5 Hagar and 6-1 Felter to block big Sol Byrd off the boards in the first half. Bell City jumped to a 14-12 first period lead but with Hagar and Felter hitting the offensive boards in the second quarter, the Hawks erased the lead with 15 points while holding the Cubs to 10 Kelly led 27-24 at the half.

Byrd finally went to work in the later part of the third period and Bell City caught up with the Hawks but soon grew tired from the full court press.

The Cubs had played the night before against the Zalma Bulldogs and probably weren't as rested as the Hawks. The Cubs were also without the services of Leonard Gross who has academic problems.

The Puxico Indians used a full court press and a 1-2-2 zone defense to win third plac against the Advance Hornets 59-36.

Puxico forced the bigger Hornets into too many physical and mental errors.

The Hornets defense was unable to keep pace with the smaller but quick guards and forwards of the Indians and after a close first period in which Advance led 9-4 guard Morgan Sifford took command and his ball handling and shooting gave Puxico 16 points in the second period as Advance shot poor and canned only six.

The triumph gave DeCoster the series point lead after five of the eight American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned races.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has accepted a bid to the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., where the Atlantic Coast Conference football team will face Mississippi State on Dec. 28.

Athletic Director Homer Rice said the decision came after the players voted unanimously to accept the bid.

On Saturday, the Tar Heels lost to Clemson 54-32.

It will mak the team's fourth bowl appearance in five years and their second in the Sun Bowl. In 1972, North Carolina defeated Texas Tech 32-28 in the Sun Bowl.

State prep track meet to travel

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri state high school outdoor track meet will have a change of scenery.

The state High School Activities Association has announced that the meet will not be held in Columbia as in past years but will be moved to various sites throughout the state each year.

This year's 4-A meet will be staged at Parkway North High School in St. Louis May 17 and at Center High school in Kansas City next year.

The 3-A meet, also May 17, will be held in Mexico. The sites for the 2-A and 1-A meets, scheduled May 10, have not been set.

Officials decided on the new plan after the Big Eight Conference scheduled its outdoor track meet at the University of Missouri May 16 and 17.

Big Red underdog

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We've never been to the playoffs, so why should anyone get excited?" an unperplexed quarterback Jim Hart asked.

And, in accepting Hart's approach, the St. Louis Cardinals are shrugging off their three-point underdog status against the Minnesota Vikings in their National Football League game tonight.

The oddsmakers' affront is nothing new for the Cardinals, who carry a 7-1 record into the nationally televised game.

But it may offer special incentive to Jim Otis, a running back who remembers a 14-10 loss to the Vikings, 6-2, in a preseason game.

"They're going to be surprised, that's all I've got to say," predicted Otis, who is expected to team with flashy Terry Metcalf in the Cardinals' backfield.

Confidence was also exuded along that line by Coach Don Coryell, who declared, "I like it when we're the underdog. Our team's going to play hard no matter what the odds are."

A match of Minnesota's stout defense against an explosive St. Louis offense could be a preview to NFL playoff action scheduled for next month.

If the Cards maintain their lead in the National Conference East and the Vikings stay atop the National Conference Central, the teams will clash again Dec. 22 in Minnesota.

"But we better not think that far ahead," warned Coryell, the coach of a team which is coming off three straight 4-9-1 seasons.

"Anything can still happen," the Cards' coach said. "We can't even think beyond this game."

St. Louis, in addition to overturning the odds, would also like to atone for previous poor showings in Monday night games.

In their last two such exposures, the Cards fell 20-17 to the San Diego Chargers in 1971 and 31-10 to the Miami Dolphins the next year.

Sports in brief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Blues moved to strengthen their defense Sunday, acquiring forwards Craig Patrick and Stan Gilbertson from the California Golden Seals for Dave Gardner and Warren "Butch" Williams in a National Hockey League trade.

Patrick, 28, rammed in 10 goals for the Seals during the 1973-74 season, while Gilbertson, 30, scored 18, and both are considered solid defensive players.

Gardner, a center, had seen limited action since coming to the Blues last season from Montreal, while Williams, a forward, had been sent to Denver of the Central Hockey League following a trial with the Blues during the 1973-74 campaign.

MEMPHIS (AP) — As the result of weekend football games, the Liberty Bowl Selection Committee said Sunday night that six teams remain under consideration.

The committee said Georgia, Tennessee, Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Baylor and Arkansas are still in the running.

Maryland, which won a Saturday game 41-0 from Villanova, last week accepted an invitation to appear in the Dec. 16 bowl.

Officials said it will be after next Saturday, or possibly even after Nov. 23, before they announce the second team from the field of six schools.

CPSC offers football safety tips

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Football, the favorite fall pastime of many Americans, is also the most hazardous sport to play, according to the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

An estimated 300,000 children and adults are treated in hospital emergency rooms, and about 20 people die annually as a result of football-related injuries.

Staff analysis on non-professional football player injury records in Commission files shows that 40 percent of all injuries occurred amont 15 to 19 year old boys. Most injuries took place at school or at other public playing facilities.

Sprains and sprains accounted for about 30 percent of the injuries, as did severe bruises and scrapes. Broken bones followed with 22 percent and serious cuts were next with 10 per cent. While only one percent of the injuries were concussions, this type of injury may be quite serious.

Repeat injuries, particularly to the head, are the most serious threat to life, according to one researcher.

A football hazard analysis by the Commission has isolated several problem areas. One problem appears to be the inadequacy of some protective equipment. While only a small percentage of injuries were directly attributable to defective, ill-fitting or broken equipment, injuries did occur beneath the equipment, indicating that it may not be providing adequate protection.

In other cases, players sustained injuries because they had neglected to wear all their equipment during practice and play. For example, a 21-year old boy cracked the third cervical vertebra (neck) after being hit from the side. He was wearing his helmet, but not a protective collar.

A study of North Carolina igh School football players, funded by the Commission, revealed that nearly 254 percent of the injuries studied came as a result of a player receiving a hard blow from the helmet, shoulder pad or shoes of another player. This statistic led to the study recommendation that consumers, coaches and others responsible for athletic activities, demand safer equipment from manufacturers. In particular, the study said, manufacturers should be encouraged to design helmet and sholder pads with soft, external padding to better cushion a player against blows from another player's equipment. Soccer shoes were recommended over conventional shoes with long cleats to reduce ankle and knee injuries. Soccer shoes were also found to be less injurious to other players.

The Commission is supporting additional research on football and sports injuries at the University of Washington.

Based on existing injury and research data, the Commission offers the following tips for players and officials to reduce football-related iniuries:

1. Choose equipment carefully. The North Carolina study pointed out that are marked differences between the effectiveness of different brands.
2. Soccer shoes are preferable to conventional football shoes.
3. Wear all equipment, even when practicing.
4. Make sure hat the playing surface is free of debris, rocks, holes, uneven surfaces and equipment.
5. Follow the rules of the game to eliminate a vast number of injuries from such illegal activities as "spearing" and "clipping".
6. Limit blocking and tackling drills during practice sessions. A significant number of injuries result from these drills.
7. Always check with a physician after an injury to make sure it is safe to resume play.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Experience should spell the difference between the 1974-75 Southeast Missouri State University basketball Indians and their counterparts of a year ago.

Starting his fifth year as head coach, Bob Cradic says, "With experience from last year under their belts, the team should be better at ball-handling. Also, we should be making fewer floor mistakes.

Cradic cites a lack of offensive punch as one of last year's major problems, but is quick to add, "Our offense will be better this year."

Cradic and his assistant, Carroll Williams, are considering a change to a one-guard offense. Cradic commented, "This should help our rebounding, where we've been real weak for the last two years."

Steve Valli, a 6-6 senior, would be utilized as the other starting center in a two- center offense. Cradic lists Valli as the player with the most scoring punch from last year.

Vying for point position in a one-guard set wuld be Caruthersville's Joe Cagle, a 6-0 sophomore, Mark Baker (New Madrid) a 6-1 senior, and Howardville's Lennies McFerron, a 5-9 senior. Cradic expects this position to be solid, explaining that all have experience, quickness, and ball-handling ability.

Cradic claims that the Indians' offensive success this season will be largely determined by the Tribe's newcomers.

Tom Mitchell, a 6-4 junior college transfer from Iowa, is highly regarded by the coaches. According to Cradic, "It's obvious to all that Tom's starting material. Hoperfully, he'll live up to our expectations." He is a prime contender for one of the two wing positions.

The other wing position will be up for grabs. Top prospects are Randy Carter, a 6-4 junior, Garry Pirch, a 6-5 junior, and Larry Rogers, a 6-5 freshman.

Rounding out the 1974-75 Indian roster will be guards Mike Uhls, a 6-3 junior, and Brady Howle, a 5-9 junior, and center Jim Baker, a 6-8 junior.

Southeast Missouri State University 1973-74 Basketball Review

"A lack of poise, the failure to capitalize on other team's mistakes, and poor shooting" were all factors in spelling the downfall of Southeast Missouri Sttate University's basketball team last season, says head coach Bob Cradic.

Cradic, who hust completed his fourth year on the Indian reservatinon recalled that at the start of the season he felt hi squad could win 60 or 70 per cent of its games.

However, an array of problems sent the Triber roundballers struggling and produced the Indians' second straight below. 500 season with a 10-14 mark. In the MIAA the Indians would up in the second division with a 5-7 record. Four of those losses came by one point.

Cradic cited several reasons for his team's failure to meet preseason expectations.

Probably the biggest was the inability to shoot a high percentage.

The Indian chief pointed out that in six games during the past season the Tribe shot less than 50 per cent from the free throw line. Other times the Tribe shot from the field at such frigid percentages as 32.

Floor mistakes also caused the Indians problems in maintaining a lead. Cradic explained, "Everytime we got beat we either went stone cold from the free throw line or hit a rash of floor mistakes."

Another difficulty the coach noted was, "We couldn't capitalize on another team's mistakes." Against such teams as the University of West Florida, Arkansas State, and Kentucky Wesleyan, Cradic said his team could have won if it had taken advantage of opponents' mistakes.

The Indian coach also said his team needed more leadership on the floor.

He explained, "The MIAA was extremely tough and there were no weak teams. Rolal was predicted to finish last prior to the start of the season and they finished 7-5, tied for second."

The coach continued, "We only had two weak teams on our schedule, Peru State and Christian Brothers College, both of whom we beat easily."

Today in U. S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Nov. 11, the 315th day of 1974. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, World War I ended with the signing of an armistice in Marshal Foch's railway car in the forest of Compiegne, France.

On this date:

In 1851, the first patent for a telescope was issued to Alvin Clark of Cambridge, Mass.

In 1889, Washington was admitted to the union as the 42nd state.

In 1921, the Washington Disarmament Conference convened.

In 1942, in World War II, the Germans occupied all of France.

Ten years ago: West Germany's ruling Christian Democratic party came out in favor of a delay in German participation in an Allied nuclear fleet proposed by the U.S. but opposed by France.

Five years ago: Anonymous critics of the Vietnam war and what they termed "big business" claimed responsibility for bomb explosions in three New York skyscrapers.

One year ago: Egypt and Israel signed a cease-fire agreement sponsored by the United States and began discussions to carry out the pact.

Today's birthdays: Former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower is 78; Comedian Jonathan Winters is 49.

Thought for today: The first recipe for happiness is: avoid too lengthy mediations on the past — Andre Maurois, French writer, 1885-1967.

End Adv for Monday, Nov. 11.

World News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lighter-than-air craft may be on the way back, more than 37 years after the fiery destruction of the dirigible Hindenberg seemed to doom the concept forever. Navy engineers are studying possible application of lighter-than-air vehicles, particularly with nuclear engines, for antisubmarine warfare and heavy cargo lifts.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, preparing for his first official journey overseas, says Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returned from his 17-country trip with "very encouraging" news. Ford and Kissinger discussed the secretary's 18-day trip for three hours Sunday at Camp David, Md. They plan to confer about two hours each day this week in preparation for Ford's Far East visit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide coal strike will begin just after midnight, but most mines already were shut for the holiday. Union and industry negotiators are optimistic about reaching a new contract. While both sides say they are making progress, a settlement appears unlikely before midweek at the earliest.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate cover-up trial enters its seventh week with the jury scheduled to hear the last White House tape released by Richard M. Nixon before he resigned the presidency. With the playing of the June 23, 1972, conversation between Nixon and cover-up defendant H.R. Haldeman, Watergate prosecutors begin what they say is the most important part of their case.

People in The News

LONDON (AP) — Queer Elizabeth II and other members of the royal family have participated under the watchfu eye of the police in ceremonies honoring the dead of Worlc Wars I and II.

Uniformed and plainclothes police were present at the Cenotaph, a monument in Whitehall, to guard against terrorist bombs. More than 20 persons have been killed in England in the past year in such bombings, attributed by police to the Irish Republican Army.

LONDON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has arrived in London as United States representative at a conference for legislators from nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Melina Mercouri, star of "Never on Sunday" and numerous other plays and movies, has entered politics.

The 49-year-old actress is running on the Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement ticket for a seat in the Greek Parliament. The Nov. 17 election is the first in Greece in more than a decade.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Allison Cheek of Annandale, Va., has defied a bishop's orders and become the first woman to conduct a communion service at an Episcopal Church in the United States.

The Rev. Mrs. Cheek held the service Sunday at St. Stephen and the Incarnation Episcopal Church here.

The service was held in defiance of orders from the Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington.

The Rev. Mrs. Cheek was among 11 women elevated to the priesthood last July during a service in Philadelphia. The denomination's House of Bishops declared the ordinations invalid.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Valery and Galina Panov, the Russian-born ballet stars who struggled for two years to leave the Soviet Union, have made their debuts in Israel.

Three thousand persons, including former Premier Golda Meir, came to Mann auditorium Sunday to watch the former soloists of Leningrad's Kirov Ballet. Wave upon wave of applause greeted their performances.

The 36-year-old Jewish dancer and his non-Jewish wife are now Israeli citizens. Israel has only two small modern dance companies and a fledgling classical ballet troupe.

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — The son of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, Germany's World War II "Desert Fox," has won a preliminary round in his race for mayor of Stuttgart.

Manfred Rommel, 46, running as the candidate of the conservative Christian Democratic Union, captured 44.2 per cent of the vote in this tradtional stronghold of the ruling Social Democrat party. That was more than any of his 13 other opponents, but not enough for the absolute majority needed to win.

All 14 will take part in a runoff Dec. 1, when the candidate receiving most votes will be declared mayor of this capital of the southern state of Baden-Wuerttemberg.

NEW YORK (AP) — Yasir Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was flying to New York today with a 17-member PLO delegation that will appear during the United Nations debate on Palestine, guerilla sources said. However, neither the guerrilla sources in Beirut nor authorities in New York would add any details for security reasons.

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — William L. Calley Jr., free on bail and unlikely to be confined ever again for the My Lai murders, still considers himself a lieutenant in the U.S. Army, his lawyers say. Calley, 31, was released on his own recognizance Saturday by U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott, the same judge who two months earlier had overturned Calley's conviction for killing 22 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968. His lawyers said Sunday that Calley's next legal step will be to inform the Army this week that he still considers himself a lieutenant in the U.S. Army and is available for duty.

GASOLINE ONCE CONSIDERED USELESS

CHICAGO (AP) — If waiting in line for gasoline makes you lose your sense of humor, try to remember that the precious fuel was once considered useless.
